Cahill loosens grip on Tocks projects

By MARY ANNE MCENERY
Ottawa News Service

NEW YORK — Gov. William T. Cahill of New Jersey reinstated his endorsement of the massive Tocks Island Dam and Recreation Projects Thursday with the enactment of two major modifications to reduce park visitor loads and remap sewage treatment systems in the affected tri-state region.

The resolutions, adopted by the Delaware River Basin Commission (DRBC), cleared a major hurdle for the controversial multi-purpose dam and surrounding Delaware Water Gap National Recreational Area. The twin projects were officially proposed 18 years ago.

Cahill said during the DRBC's annual meeting here that the changes "are evidence of progress and a reasonable attitude on the part of the (DRBC) staff, the federal government, and the states in accepting what we believe are constructive suggestions if the projects are to become a reality."

Cahill unleashed his seven-point package of demands to the DRBC at a session last September in Philadelphia. Several of the other demands, including the creation of flood plains in his state and neighboring Pennsylvania, and the enactment of local zoning controls have gained headway in both state legislatures.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, who took over the chairmanship of the commission from Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania, told a press conference afterwards that Tocks Island "is off and running." He predicted that construction of the dam would begin in three years.

Morton also noted later that about 50 per cent of the 72,000 acres needed for the dam and park have been acquired.

Asked what other hurdles had to be cleared before the bulldozers moved in, Morton alluded to the need for refinement of water supply and flood control designs. He did not single out any step in the entangled review process that has evolved through new federal environmental acts over recent years, many of which have affected the examination of the Tocks plans.

Morton, however, took the opportunity to tout what he described as a meteoric rise in attention to pollution control and conservation measures. "The environmental policy act is in itself a whole new ballgame. It's taken a long time, but we're pushing through the threshold" of environmental controls, Morton said.

During the formal meeting, staged in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, Shapp was the only governor to make a strong pitch for the Tocks projects.

Pointing to the flood damage wrought by Tropical Storm Agnes last year when the Susquehanna River, the Delaware's largest tributary, overflowed its banks, Shapp said, "If there was ever any doubt in my mind about the need for a well-balanced flood control system within Pennsylvania, this doubt was quickly dispelled."

During the press conference, Shapp was asked how the projects are proceeding in light of opposition from local officials and environmentalists. Shapp said "most people are pleased with the developments and planning, and most of the fears will be abated as the benefits of the projects are realized."

The change in the park visitor load reduces the estimated annual attendance from 10 million to 4 million with a decrease in daily attendance from 142,000 to 42,000. Cahill pushed the reduction so that New Jersey portions of the park could better handle mass influxes.

During an executive session before the meeting, Commission sources said the governors contested a new Interior Department policy to outlaw campers, reportedly because the policy would lead to the proliferation of private campsites outside the park. Another resolution, which was drawn up just before the governors assembled, called upon the Interior Department to re-appraise the policy.

The other resolution calls for the elimination of an earlier favored central sewage system for the Tocks region in favor of a network of small treatment plants. The centralized system had proposed a giant plant below the dam fed by giant interceptor trunk lines running up and down the 37-mile stretch of the river.

Under the new plan, treatment plants in Pennsylvania would be built at Matamoras, Milford, and Dingmans Ferry and in New Jersey at Montague, Sandyston, Flatbrook and Van Campans.

What's news

(Dow Jones-Ottawa News Service)

S-mobile fee face hike

HARRISBURG — The House Transportation Committee Thursday approved a measure amending the snowmobile registration law. The measure, sponsored by Rep. Forest Hopkins, (R-Erie), hikes the registration fee from $5 every two years to $5 each year.

Sabotage trial begins

SAN FRANCISCO — The first American serviceman charged with "sabotage in time of war" since World War II was motivated by anger over his brother's bad conduct discharge, the Navy prosecutor argued Thursday as his court martial began. Navy fireman Patrick D. Chenoweth, 21, Puyallup, Wash., went on trial on charges of dropping a paint scraper and two 12-inch bolts into the reduction gears of the carrier USS Ranger's No. 4 engine last summer. The bolts snapped the teeth of the huge gears causing $800,000 damage that delayed the carrier's return to Vietnam waters for three and one-half months.

Watergate prober added

WASHINGTON — Thomas F. McBride, a former Justice Department attorney, was named Thursday by special prosecutor Archibald Cox to coordinate "Watergate-related investigations and prosecutions." An aide in Cox's office also disclosed that Attorney General Elliott L. Richardson issued a directive Thursday at Cox' request to all U. S. attorneys and all branches of the Justice Department including the FBI urging them to cooperate with the special prosecutor in his investigation of the break-in at Democratic national headquarters.

Programming exchange signed

NEW YORK — The National Broadcasting Corp. and the Soviet Union signed an agreement Thursday to exchange radio and television programming, NBC, in making the announcement, said the agreement was the result of four years of negotiations and discussions between NBC and Russian officials. The agreement described by NBC as "wide-ranging and long-term" provides for the exchange of news specials and documentaries which reflect life in the two countries.

Skylab postpones damage survey

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab's astronauts agreed Thursday night to use an exterior television camera to inspect a damaged solar power wing but mission control later said there was not enough time to do it today as originally hoped.

The unusual outside damage survey is expected to be carried out later, if the procedures can be worked out, to see if Skylab's astronauts could safely free the wing during a spacewalk.

Flight controllers first asked mission commander Charles "Pete" Conrad if he would agree to inserting the television camera through an airlock today even though it was a scheduled "day off" for the astronauts. Conrad said they would do it.

But two hours later, mission control said there was not enough time to develop all the procedures required to do it today. Flight director Donald Puddy said a 90 degree lens would have to be jury-rigged in front of the camera so it would be able to inspect the wing, jammed against the side of Skylab.

In the meantime, Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz turned off some ventilating fans, lights, a bathroom heater and cancelled a survey of earth's resources to ease Skylab's energy problem.

The power shortage worsened

Wednesday when the second of 18 main battery circuits failed, robbing Skylab of 11 per cent of the power it has available from four working solar panels. They convert sunlight into electricity.

If the big solar panel could be freed, it would almost double Skylab's power generating capacity and end the power problems.

Engineers wanted to use the television camera to get a closeup view of the jammed solar wing to see if the astronauts could safely free it.

"We still have high hopes of being able to get OWS (orbital workshop) wing No. 1 deployed," Puddy said. "It would be a tremendous boost."

If the astronauts are given permission to walk in space to attempt to free the wing, Puddy said they might use a crow bar to try to break an aluminum strap holding the wing folded against Skylab.

There was no estimate on when the television damage inspection would be conducted, if flight planners decide it is feasible.

In Huntsville, Ala., backup commander Russell L. Schweickart rushed ground tests to work out spacewalk procedures if the television survey shows that a spacewalk could be safely carried out to cut an aluminum strap locking the wing against Skylab.

Anti-bombing measure passes 63-19

Senate votes to halt air war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted 63 to 19 Thursday to cut off all funds for the bombing of Cambodia, putting both houses of Congress on record against continuation of the air war that has raged there since the Indochina ceasefire Jan. 28.

All attempts by administration supporters to block, cripple or delay the measure were turned back by decisive margins. The antiwar amendment, sponsored by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., then passed the Senate by a lopsided margin in a major defeat for President Nixon's policies.

The vote means that any further bombing in Cambodia will be in defiance of the expressed will of majorities in both the House and Senate.

It could be weeks, however, before the antiwar amendment is sent to the President for his signature or veto.

The Eagleton amendment — part of a $3.7 billion supplemental appropriations bill — would cut off all funds "heretofore" appropriated by Congress to support any U.S. military action "in, over or from the shores of" Cambodia and Laos.

The House, by a 219-188 vote May 10, passed a similarly worded prohibition as part of its $2.8 billion version of the supplemental bill. But its ban would apply only to the funds in the bill — not other congressional appropriations.

The differences will have to be resolved by a House-Senate conference, passed again by both houses and then signed by the President before the measure becomes law.

Eagleton said afterwards the size of the vote "should be a message loud and clear" to the President that it was "illegal and unconstitutional as of this moment" to continue the bombing.

"I should think a vote of 63 to 19, to use the President's terms, is crystal clear," he said.

In the final vote, 43 Democrats and 20 Republicans supported the amendment, while three Democrats and 16 Republicans opposed it. More than half the President's own party thus deserted him.

"I don't think this is part of the outfall of Watergate," Eagleton said, but a result of the "euphoria" that began March 28 when all U.S. troops and prisoners of war were out of

Pompidou softens toward mass summit meeting

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) — In a bow to President Nixon, French President Georges Pompidou Thursday softened his opposition to a summit meeting this fall of all U. S. and European allies.

In more than five hours of private talks, Nixon reportedly convinced the reluctant Frenchman that such a forum would not be a blow to France's prestige and that he would not use it for economic blackmail.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's chief foreign policy adviser, said he would begin a series of meetings in Paris next Thursday with French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert to determine whether an agreeable "declaration of principles" could be reached for the late October or early November summit.

The announcement, made by Kissinger and Denis Baudouin, the French spokesman, removed a key obstacle to Nixon's hopes of making 1973 his "year of Europe" and setting forth a new set of principles to govern U.S. European relations.

Pompidou did not drop his insistence on separate negotiations on economic, defense and diplomatic matters in which the United States would deal separately with each of its European allies.

But according to both Kissinger and Baudouin, Pompidou agreed to base his decisions on the success of the preliminary talks.

Pompidou had earlier spurned feelers for such a session reportedly on grounds that it would give Nixon an advantage over any one of his European counterparts and would lead to a jumbling of the negotiations in the economic, military and political fields that would enable the United States to use the threat of withdrawing forces from NATO to wring economic concessions.

Announcement of the development came at the close of the first full day of talks, described by spokesmen for both sides as "very useful and constructive" ones regarding the past and future of the Atlantic Alliance.

The two also had their spokesmen say they were in full agreement on the necessity of keeping a strong U.S. military presence in Europe until mutual force reduction could be negotiated with the Russians.

Haldeman denies coverup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former presidential chief of staff H. R. Haldeman acknowledged Thursday that the White House sought to limit one aspect of the FBI investigation of the Watergate break-in, but categorically denied he had participated in a coverup.

Haldeman released his four-page statement to the Senate subcommittee on intelligence operations which referred to a key White House meeting June 23, 1972, between himself and top CIA officials.

"We did discuss the concern that, in the interest of national security and the former relationships of some of the principals with the CIA, the FBI investigation be limited to the Watergate case specifically, and not expanded into prior activities of the individuals involved," Haldeman said.

As a result of that meeting, Haldeman said, the CIA was asked to ensure that the FBI did not uncover any "unrelated covert operations of the CIA."

Prison warden, deputy fatally stabbed by convicts

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The warden and deputy warden of Holmesburg Prison were stabbed to death Thursday during a grievance hearing on prayer services with two Black Muslim inmates, one serving a life term for the murder of a policeman and the other accused of a police killing.

A guard captain also was stabbed before the two prisoners were subdued by guards with clubs in a fierce battle in which both were injured seriously.

Warden Patrick Curran, 48, and Deputy Warden Robert Fromhold, 51, both stabbed in the chest, were pronounced dead at Nazareth hospital.

Guard Capt. Leroy Taylor, 49, was reported in good condition at Nazareth with stab wounds in the back, and the two inmates, identified as Joseph Bowen and Fred Burton, were under heavy police guard at Philadelphia General Hospital.

Bowen, 25, had a ruptured spleen and a broken arm, and Burton, 26, suffered severe head injuries, a hospital spokesman said.

Officials said Bowen and Burton had gone to Fromhold's office to discuss a request for daily Muslim prayer services. A few minutes later, officials said, Fromhold staggered bleeding from the office and Taylor and Curran, whose office was across the hall, rushed to his aid. Both were stabbed, Curran fatally.

A probation officer said a guard ran from an entranceway near the warden's office shouting, "The warden's been stabbed. The warden's been stabbed."

Philadelphia Mayor Frank L. Rizzo, a former police commissioner who quelled a major riot at the prison in 1970, said the two prisoners asked the warden a month ago for a room in which to hold three-hour prayer services two days a week.

"Then they went back (Thursday) and said they wanted it seven days a week. That's a lot of praying," the mayor said.

"This is a good case for the death penalty test," Rizzo told newsmen. "You'll never deter crime without it. I'm tired of hearing this baloney about be kind to criminals. They were in there because they were criminals."

Police said two knives were recovered from Fromhold's blood-spattered office. They declined to say whether the prisoners were searched before they were allowed to see the deputy warden.

Burton, 26, was one of five members of a "Black Unity Council" convicted in the August, 1970, slaying of Fairmount Park Police Sgt. Frank Van Colin. He was sentenced to a life term for murder.

Bowen is also black but authorities said he apparently was not a political militant. He was awaiting trial for the February, 1971, slaying of Patrolman John Kelly.

Protestant new Irish president

DUBLIN (UPI) — English-born Erskine Childers Thursday became the first Protestant to be elected president of the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Irish Republic, succeeding 91-year-old Eamon de Valera, the Brooklyn-born patriarch of Irish independence.

Political sources said the victory by Childers, 68, over his Roman Catholic opponent in Wednesday's presidential elections was a dramatic gesture of conciliation toward predominantly Protestant Northern Ireland where the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) is waging a war of violence.

Childers, candidate of the opposition Finna Fail party, polled 636,162 votes or 52 per cent of the total to 587,577 votes or 48 per cent for Tom O'Higgins, 56, representing the governing Fine Gael and Labor party coalition, according to the completed count.

Childers, who will become the fourth president of the republic, actually is the second Protestant to occupy the nation's highest office.

U.S. claims POW list not complete

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department said Thursday it does not consider the lists provided by North Vietnam to be "a complete and accurate accounting" of American prisoners of war.

Dr. Roger E. Shivers, assistant to the assistant secretary of defense, testified before a House subcommittee that "the most agonizing and frustrating" problem that remained concerned "those who are thought to have been captured alive but who have not been returned."

Shields said these were "cases of men who were seen on the ground or whose pictures were released subsequent to capture but who, for one reason or another, have not returned and for whom the other side has yet to provide a satisfactory explanation."

"We do not consider the lists received so far to be a complete and accurate accounting for our men," he told the foreign affairs subcommittee on national security policy.

But Frank A. Sieverts, special assistant to the deputy secretary of state for POWs and Missing in Action matters, testified there was "no indication" from debriefings of returned POWs "that any American personnel continue to be held in Indochina."

"All American prisoners known to any of our returned POWs have either been released or been listed by the Communist authorities as having died in captivity," Sieverts said.

"Returnees with whom I have talked ... are clear in their belief that no U.S. prisoners continue to be held," he added.

Shields said that a full accounting of the some 1,300 Americans "is not yet available to us" but promised that the Defense Department "will continue to seek the fullest possible accounting for these men."

He said the department was seeking to recover the remains of the missing who have died and those who are listed as killed in action.

In addition to the 1,300 men listed as missing there are about 1,100 others who have been declared dead by the services but whose bodies have not been recovered.

Shields said that on May 11 and 18 a U.S. inspection team inspected burial sites in North Vietnam, allegedly of American servicemen, but Hanoi would not allow identification or recovery of the remains.

"We are currently trying to arrange for the exhumation and repatriation of these remains and of any other American dead known to the other side," he said.

Another unresolved issue between the United States and the Communists, he said, was the "acquisition of entry rights for our search teams to areas throughout Southeast Asia where our men are missing."

This was a particular issue in Laos where only nine Americans were listed as prisoners while over 300 Americans remain unaccounted for, he said.

Attack on Hue repulsed

SAIGON (UPI) — A Communist force spearheaded by three tanks attacked the outer defenses of the old imperial capital of Hue but was repulsed in a battle in which one tank was destroyed, South Vietnamese military spokesmen said Thursday.

South Vietnamese artillery batteries blasted the column when the Soviet-made PT76 amphibious tanks had rolled to within 300 yards of the government's 1st Infantry Division outpost 18 miles west of Hue, which is 385 miles northeast of Saigon.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, a government military spokesman, said one of the tanks was knocked out and 15 of the attackers killed in subsequent fighting Wednesday. The other two tanks retreated back toward the Communist bastion in the A Shau valley near the border with Laos. There were no reported government casualties.

It was the first such use of tanks by the Communists since Feb. 6, when seven tanks were destroyed by artillery and air attacks during fighting in the same area, Hien said.

Hien reported 77 truce violations in the 24-hour period ended at noon Thursday, five fewer than the previous day. This brought the total since Jan. 28 to 15,164. In the post-truce fighting, Hien said, 21,317 Communists, 5,461 government troops and 943 civilians have been slain.

In another development, a Viet Cong spokesman said American F4 Phantom tactical jets bombed and strafed the Xa Mat area of South Vietnam Wednesday. A U.S. Embassy spokesman responded that the Communist charge was "totally untrue."

"We do not conduct armed military operations or flights in South Vietnam," he said. The spokesman had responded in the same manner to similar Viet Cong charges of American air attacks in the Xa Mat and Loc Ninh areas issued on May 12 and May 13 to the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) of the cease-fire.

Senators to fight abortion decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six senators, moving to bypass a recent Supreme Court decision, proposed Thursday a constitutional amendment which would outlaw abortions except as a means of saving the mother's life.

Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., speaking for the sponsors, said the proposed "human life amendment" was drawn to also head off what he called "a renewed interest in so-called mercy killing."

The measure, which would require approval by two-thirds of each house of Congress and by three-fourths of the states, would give an unborn child full protection of rights under the Constitution.

In a decision invalidating the anti-abortion laws of most states, the Supreme Court last Jan. 22 ruled that an abortion in the first three months of pregnancy is a matter to be decided solely by a woman and her doctor.

In the second three months, states may regulate abortion procedures. And in the final three months, after the "viability stage," the state may forbid abortions except where necessary to preserve the life or health of the mother.

Buckley's co-sponsors are

Sens. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Dewey F. Bartlett, R-Okla.

"Abortion is a form of violence," Hatfield said in a Senate floor speech on the amendment. "That is the undeniable reality. It is destruction of life. It furthers the dehumanization of life. It cheapens life."

"We are, I fear, entering an era where the sacredness of human life, born and unborn, will be sacrificed on the altar of social utilitarianism."

Buckley said the amendment would establish that unborn children "are persons within the meaning of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution" — the only exception to the abortion prohibition being case where pregnancy risks the mother's life.

Gurney urges calling key ex-Nixon aides in probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and a Republican member of his Senate Watergate committee said Thursday they would like to zero in quickly on the central issue — President Nixon's role in the affair — by calling his former aides immediately.

But Ervin said there is no choice but to wait until mid-June to summon two key former White House aides, John W. Dean III and Jeb Stuart Magruder.

Responding to an appeal by Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., for an end to hearsay testimony, Ervin said in Winston-Salem, N.C., it would be about June 14 before Dean and Magruder could be granted immunity from prosecution to tell their own stories.

"I wish the top level White House officials were available," Ervin said. "If everybody connected with the White House would come out and tell what they know we could find out in a week."

But Ervin noted that the attorney general has refused to waive a 20-day notice period blocking an immediate order of immunity from Chief U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, former Republican national chairman, added his objection to the pace of the committee investigation thus far, saying in a speech at Whippany, N. J.:

"I ask that it be no less thorough, no less cautious, no less concerned with detail. But for heaven's sake, let it be speedier — so that we can get this whole affair behind us."

In a lengthy letter to the other six members of the special panel that began televised public hearings May 17, Gurney complained things are going too slowly and not cutting to the heart of the issue: whether Nixon was involved.

"Thus far, we have had minor witnesses who can shed little real light on the involvement of the President," he said. "However, their testimony has provided huge black headlines charging presidential involvement based solely on hearsay or opinion ..."

"Both the presidency and the nation deserve better than this."

He said the committee could "get to the heart of Watergate" in short order by calling seven one-time Nixon lieutenants — H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, John W. Dean III, John N. Mitchell, Maurice H. Stans, Herbert W. Kalmbach and Charles W. Colson.

Gurney said they should be called beginning next Tuesday, when the hearings resume after a week's recess.

"They can tell the committee and the nation whether or not and to what extent the President had knowledge of Watergate," Gurney said.

"... To proceed otherwise seriously hamstring the office of the presidency. The Watergate hearings hang over Washington like a black thundercloud with everyone wondering if the storm will break. In the meantime, the government has either ground to a halt or is proceeding at a snail's pace."

A spokesman for committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said he did not expect Gurney's letter to change the senator's plan to call witnesses in the previously announced order.

"He really wants to put all the White House people together and not stretch them out over a period of time," said Hall Smith, the senator's press spokesman.

U.S. planes pound rebels

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — American warplanes raided suspected Cambodian rebel positions along the banks of the Mekong River Thursday, military sources said.

The planes were called in after a number of clashes between Cambodian troops and rebels in an area along the riverbanks about 14 miles southeast of Phnom Penh on Wednesday.

Elsewhere, the Cambodian High Command said defenders of the southern provincial capital of Takeo, 55 miles south of Phnom Penh, repulsed a rebel attack Wednesday. No casualty figures were available.

To the north, authoritative military sources said government units had recovered the belongings of an American pilot, who was killed when his A7 Corsair crashed near the historic ruins of Angkor Wat May 25.

The sources said the pilot's flight helmet, parachute, map case, radio, pistol, boots and identification papers were recovered, as well as personal odds and ends, indicating that rebel troops had not reached the crash site.

11 persons escape hijacked airliner

ORANJESTAD, Aruba, Netherlands Antilles (UPI) — A hijacked Colombian airliner carrying 38 hostages took off from this Dutch island Thursday after 11 passengers escaped from the rear door, dodging bullets, as the engines warmed up.

The destination of the plane was not immediately known.

The two hijackers fired two shots at the fleeing passengers, but did not hit any. However, several of the passengers were injured in the fall from the plane.

The passengers apparently passed open the door while the hijackers were in the front section talking to the crew.

Two of the passengers who escaped were women.

A total of 49 passengers and crewmembers had been held captive aboard the plane in Aruba for nearly 24 hours after the craft was hijacked over Colombia.

The hijackers refused to permit a new five-man crew to board the plane and insisted that the tired, original crew continue the flight.

Minutes before the plane left at 4:45 p.m. EDT, a member of the fresh crew handed a brief case to one of the hijackers. It was speculated that the case contained ransom money.

The long-haired, masked hijackers, armed with pistols and submachineguns, demanded a cash ransom of $300,000 for release of the hostages and plane, a four-engine Electra belonging to the Colombian SAM airline, which they said they would up $50,000 an hour for every hour they had to wait for their money.

If the hijackers were serious, their ransom demand would have swelled to $750,000 by nightfall.

"Everyone is tired and nervous, including the hijackers," one freed passenger said. "Everyone is calling for a doctor. The hijackers are letting the sick passengers leave."

The plane was hijacked in the air between Cali and Barranquilla Wednesday on a domestic flight and the pilot ordered to fly to Oranjestad to refuel.

The hijackers originally demanded the release of 49 "political prisoners" in Colombia, as well as a cash ransom, but apparently withdrew the former demand when the Colombian government refused to negotiate.

At dawn Thursday the hijackers order the plane flown to Lima, Peru, but the aircraft had to turn back minutes later because of problems with the propeller lubrication system.

A Netherlands Antilles Airline (ALM) plane which took some of the released passengers to Medellin, Colombia, was due back later Thursday with propeller lubricant and a company mechanic to check the plane. SAM airline officials said they were flying in a relief crew for the exhausted pilot and copilot.

The pilot of the hijacked plane, Capt. Jorge Lucena, identified the hijackers as young men between 25 and 30.

The political affiliation, if any, of the hijackers was not immediately known. The prisoners whose release they demanded were mainly members of the Castroite Army of National Liberation, ELN.

CIA records counter Erlichman testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Marine Corps Commandant Robert E. Cushman Jr. said Thursday CIA records show that former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman initiated a request for CIA assistance to Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. — a request Ehrlichman does not recall making.

Cushman, former deputy CIA director, told a news conference he rewrote a memorandum destined for federal Watergate prosecutors because Ehrlichman neglected to mention himself as making the telephone request.

"I do not regard Mr. Ehrlichman's position and mine as being necessarily contradictory...I can easily understand why Mr. Ehrlichman does not remember the call," which was brief, Cushman said.

Cushman said a check of the minutes of morning staff meetings attended by then Director Richard M. Helms and other high CIA officials showed that on July 8, 1971, Cushman announced he had received a telephone call from Ehrlichman asking aid for Hunt.

The equipment provided by the CIA is reported to have been used in the Sept. 3, 1971, break-in and attempted burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Ehrlichman told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee Wednesday his only conversation with Cushman about Hunt was in late August, 1971, when Cushman called to say the CIA wanted to terminate its assistance to Hunt, then a member of a White House team investigating news leaks of classified documents.

"I also recall wondering at the time how Hunt had obtained help from the CIA in the first place," Ehrlichman said.

But Cushman said that last December he was told by William Colby, recently nominated to become CIA director, to prepare a memorandum for the chief Watergate prosecutor, Earl J. Silbert, describing any contacts with Hunt.

Cushman said Colby told him to send the memo to Ehrlichman at the White house for approval rather than send it directly to Silbert.

The most advanced system for flight training is right here

There's a totally new concept in flight training—a total learning system available only at Piper Flite Centers. It has three parts: the program, the plane and the people.

The Piper Instructional Program is a new audio-visual system coordinated with the Piper flight syllabus. It shows you on the ground, with movies, slides and sound, the flight principles you put into practice in the air. You can schedule your time on this learning system at your convenience, and learn at your own speed. No need to attend regular classes or wait for others to catch up with you. And, there are spot quizzes along the way that let you check your progress.

The plane you use is the well-known Piper Cherokee—bigger, roomier, more powerful than most trainers. It is easy to fly and easy to land—a docile, stable airplane. ## Academy to graduate 106 seniors

BLAIRSTOWN, N.J. — Blair Academy will graduate 106 members of the senior class Sunday, marking the school's 125th graduating class.

This is one of the largest classes to be graduated in recent years. The ceremonies will be held on the campus lawn facing Locke Hall at 2 p.m. immediately following a buffet luncheon for the seniors and their parents.

Diplomas are to be awarded by Dr. J. Brooks Hoffman, Blair class of '36 and chairman of the board of trustees.

The Baccalaureate service will be held in Memorial Hall at 11 a.m., with the Baccalaureate sermon to be delivered by Rev. John Verdery, headmaster of the Wooster School in Danbury, Conn. Verdery is an alumnus of Blair, class of 1935, and a former alumni trustee.

Commencement Weekend 1973 at Blair begins today, with the prize assembly at 1:30 p.m., at which time underperform students will be cited for academic accomplishment.

Rep. Gekas guest Jaycees speaker

STROUDSBURG — Rep. George W. Gekas will address the Pocono Mountains Jaycees at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Cedar Room of the Penn Stroud Hilton.

Gekas, who represents the 103rd District in Pennsylvania's House, will speak on two pending House bills, 189 and 190, designed to preserve the quality of scenic woodland trails.

All young men between 18 and 36 are invited to the meeting.

West End Fire Co. joins control center service

West End Bureau
BRODHEADSVILLE — The West End Fire Co. has decided to go on the control center service in East Stroudsburg to provide 24-hour coverage for area residents.

According to Fire Chief Bill Gethen, Jr., the new call system will probably go into effect sometime in June after the new telephone directory comes out.

He explained that the company had been considering the move for some time, but felt the costs of the set-up would probably be prohibitive. After looking into the situation, the official said the new system will actually save the volunteers money.

Currently the company operates with a 10-station fire telephone system. When a resident calls in a fire, 10 separate fire phones ring at various businesses and locations around the area. Whoever answers the phone starts the siren and calls in the location to the firehouse.

The cost of the fire phone set-up currently is $18 a month. With the control center hook-up, the cost will be a mere $10 a month.

Although stressing that in the last two years there has been no difficulty receiving fire calls, Gethen said he was concerned about the system at such times as New Year's Eve when even the firehouse bar was closed and all the residents were out.

"I am more confident now that the company will have no chance at all of missing any call. The control center will be available 24-hours a day, 365 days a year," said the chief. "At the control center, too, the people are professionals and they know how to calm a person down immediately and get the required information."

Gethen explained that when a call is phoned in to the control center, a man there will immediately start the siren at the firehouse and alert the volunteers via several home-unit radios.

In explaining how the new call system would work, the chief said he didn't foresee any problems with residents in the 215 calling area having to make a long distance call to get help, since Brodheadsville currently is a long distance call anyway.

He stressed however, that residents should be prepared for any emergency before it happened and called on all residents to write down directions to get to their house and keep them by the phone in case fire broke out.

In an emergency it would then be an easy thing to merely read the directions to the man at the control center.

Gethen said it was especially important to pinpoint nearby land marks or route numbers. He said residents should also write down their name and telephone number, so they wouldn't forget to give that information along with the directions.

He said residents should indicate what kind of emergency or fire was involved so the proper equipment can be dispensed.

Fishing group may merge

EAST STROUDSBURG — Monroe County's Fishing Unlimited Club may merge with a national non-profit fishing organization, Trout Unlimited.

Club members decided at the last meeting this may be the best way to achieve desired goals.

Persons interested in organizing local chapter of Trout Unlimited should attend a meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday in room 117 of Stroud Hall at East Stroudsburg State College.

Explorers take canoe trip

Mount Pocono Bureau

TOBYHANNA — Explorer Post 801 of the Tobyhanna Army Depot, which comprises young men between the ages of 14 to 19 from Tobyhanna, Mount Pocono and Tannersville recently spent a weekend on a canoe trip on the Delaware River.

Departing on Friday from the 305th Signal Company USAR headquarters at Tobyhanna Army Depot, the group, which included girls from Explorer Post 334, Bethlehem, arrived in Hankins, N.Y. where they camped out. Early Sunday morning they canoed to Narrowsburg for a campout and recreation.

Sunday they continued on to Minisink Camp Grounds north of Barryville, N.Y.

The 305th Signal Company USAR supplied trucks and a driver for the bus supplied by the Tobyhanna Army Depot which transported the explorers, canoes and equipment to Hankins and picked them up in Barryville on Sunday for the return trip to Tobyhanna.

Each explorer had to pass basic swimming requirements before being accepted for the trip.

History lesson still being taught

People who echo the original Henry Ford's pronouncement about the study of the past — "History is the bunk!" — Have got a lot to learn, and ironically enough, history could teach it to them.

Man's experience is cyclical, a series of reactions that carries us forward by fits and starts. Something like the young boy who hated school and took as much time as he could in getting there by taking two steps forward and one backward.

Increased permissiveness in society is a case in point. Many people who never studied the past nonetheless alluded to it by crying out that the United States — indeed, the world — was heading down the same path of self-destruction followed by imperial Rome centuries ago. They reckoned without the evidence of history that every action begets an opposite reaction.

And the reaction to permissiveness has set in. State after state has been passing laws making it easier for law enforcement officials to crack down on smut peddlers and X-rated movie purveyors. Pennsylvania is the latest to join the pack, with the passage Wednesday by the House, 178-2.

The measure faces more opposition in the Senate, and some critics call it unconstitutional, which means, should the bill become law, it is almost certain to face a court test.

And that's part of the action-reaction cycle, too. It is good that the world works this way. Only by passing through the anealing fire of debate and testing can real progress be made.

There seems little doubt that the Supreme Court rulings that fed the pornography flame left too few checks in an area that should be guided as much as anything by good taste. But the rigid codes those rulings struck down went too far the other way; they infringed on personal freedom and artistic license to an unfortunate degree.

Out of the angry reaction and the tests it will face, we are sure will come guidelines more amendable to all concerned — allowing a greater amount of freedom while slowing the flood of filth that passes for "art" in many quarters. This same progression has been occurring throughout our past. Those who worried needn't have; all they had to do was read a history book.

The clerk, fed up with red tape, buck-passing, forms, and efficiency experts, growled, "I don't do a thing."

Silently, the interrogator made a note, then turned to the other clerk. "And what's your job here?" Following his fellow worker's lead, he replied, "I don't do a thing, either."

At this, the investigator's face lighted up, "Hmm," he mumbled, "duplication."

They only spend your money

Most of our Presidents were personally cheap. No matter how profligate they were before election, the moment they stepped through the portals of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue they sealed the wallets. Not only did they stop spending their own money, but, in their exalted position, they became freeloaders.

There are exceptions. President Ulysses Simpson Grant went broke in the White House. He was dying of cancer of the throat, writing his memoirs feverishly, living off the financial advances supplied by his worried publisher. He never learned to play the game.

Abraham Lincoln had a spendthrift wife. She bought 200 pairs of gloves at a time. Once, at an Easter reception, she took scissors from her purse and snipped the plum-colored velvet ribbon from a lady's hat. Abe warned her that she would spend her days "in an asylum."

Longtime patience

And yet she complained so much about grocery prices that the White House grocer quit. President Lincoln called him into the Executive Office and put an arm around him: "Can't you stand for 15 minutes what I have stood for 15 years?" he said.

There is a gulf between spending personal money and public money. President Nixon recently laid out $8,000,000 for a new jet plane. Mrs. Nixon ordered the interior design, at a cost of $2,000,000. To her chagrin she has just found out that she forgot to leave a passage way from the front of the aircraft to the back without passing through her large stateroom.

President Eisenhower told me that all his money was tied up in an irrevocable trust. This means that the executors did not tell him what stocks or bonds he was buying, and therefore his investments could not influence his judgment. Ike, who was only a colonel in 1945, became rich in the White House.

If he spent a buck, it was on paint and brushes. He had no objection to rich patriots helping him to get a farm at Gettysburg, and donating cattle and tractors. His executive assistant was Sherman Adams. When it was disclosed that Adams accepted a vicuna coat, Ike lopped the head off his trusted advisor and sent him home in disgrace.

Eisenhower wrote a book: "Crusade in Europe." As an author, I can tell you that we pay big taxes on bestsellers. Not Ike. Congress passed a special bill allowing him to call it capital gains.

John Kennedy got a million dollar trust fund from his father. When he was a Congressman, he was so cheap that he took his dates to local movies, fished in his pockets, and murmured: "I must have forgot my money. Lend me a few dollars. I'll mail it to you." I never met a girl who said she got her money back.

As President, Kennedy laid down a rule: "Never carry cash." If, on a rare occasion, he was forced to pay for something, he borrowed the money from Bill Greer, his Secret Service driver. Greer kept a "book," and had to ask the President for the total amount each month.

Kennedy's headache, like Lincoln's was that he was married to a spender. Roars of rage emerged from the sacred Oval Office on the first of the month when the President saw his wife's bills. On those days, Mrs. Kennedy and her maid, Providencia Parades, hid in a room on the second floor until the President blew himself out.

Lyndon Johnson never had any more money than the coins and keys he jingled in his pocket. He told me that Mrs. Johnson was the business head of the family. She understood bargains in land, radio and TV stations — even garments. He turned lights out in empty offices in the White House. She still wears the $2.98 wedding ring he bought in Sears Roebuck.

Publicly, Franklin D. Roosevelt spent more than any other President. He had to fight an economic depression, a great war, and build an atom bomb. His famous stamp collection was a cheap assortment.

Longwear suit

Mrs. Roosevelt begged him, in scribbled notes, to please buy a new suit of clothes. He refused. He had a gray baggy suit which lasted all 12 years he was in the White House. Once, Bill Hassett asked him to buy a two-volume set of books about the history of Hyde Park.

"Nothing doing," Roosevelt said. "They want $17.50 for it. I can't afford it." In private correspondence, George Washington complained that his estate at Mount Vernon was burning up more money than it earned; the cost of supporting his mother was increasing alarmingly.

When Andrew Johnson drank at the Willard bar, he demanded the cheapest whiskey. That is, of course, unless it was on the house...

Goldwater's peril

WASHINGTON D.C. — There are both melancholy and ominous qualities to Barry Goldwater's opinion, expressed in an exclusive interview with the Chicago Tribune, that Richard Nixon did not tell the whole truth in his April 30 speech on Watergate. That, however, is the only construction that can be put on Goldwater's words:

"Now the important question is when we get to the coverup. I am going to believe that he didn't attempt any coverup until it is proven that he was involved. I have to say it's not easy to stay with that feeling. I have to think he knew about this a good time before his speech" — that is, the April 30 speech.

This is a melancholy moment, however things turn out, because it was Barry

Goldwater after all, more than anyone else, who was the father of Richard Nixon's political rebirth and his 1968 Presidential candidacy.

He backed Nixon in 1968

After his crushing defeat in 1964, and with what many Republican conservatives regarded as undue haste, Goldwater endorsed Nixon for the 1968 nomination. In due course, this proved a large frustration for the supporters of Governor Reagan, but Goldwater's motives were clear and they were rooted in his Republican loyalties.

Goldwater had seen the party not only defeated but shattered, and knowing that it could not capture the White House if its liberals and conservatives persisted in the internecine civil war of 1964, he turned to Nixon

Nixon protecting plumbers

WASHINGTON — If the Watergate prosecutors had their way, the anticipated indictment of the White House conspirators (1) would indicate President Nixon helped to cover up the illegal operations of his subordinates and (2) would suggest that his possible involvement should be investigated further.

The prosecutors have raised the presidential question in a careful, confidential memorandum, which discusses the options for dealing with evidence against the President. The final decision will be up to special prosecutor Archibald Cox who is now in charge of the case.

As we reported on May 25, Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen previously had reminded the prosecutors that the President was not on trial. Petersen had instructed them specifically not to inquire into the personal conversations between the President and his lawyer.

This attitude from above had an inhibiting effect upon the prosecutors, although Petersen assured us he had not intended it. They missed several opportunities to inquire into the President's involvement and, indeed, seemed reluctant to bring up his name. But in more recent weeks, they have pulled no punches.

Can't pretend

The secret, sworn testimony has produced absolutely no evidence that the President was implicated in the Watergate burglary and bugging. But sources close to the investigation tell us the prosecutors can no longer pretend that he was innocent of the cover-up.

With the aid of these sources, we have put together the case against the President. It is based on testimony both published and still secret.

By his own account, President Nixon tried to set up an antisubversive operation, headed by the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, to deal with "grave" security threats. This extraordinary, extralegal squad would have been empowered to break into the quarters of security suspects.

When Hoover would have no part of this, the plan was abandoned. But subsequently, the President established his own para-police unit, known as "the plumbers," inside the White House. Two of the plumbers, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, broke into the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in Los Angeles in September 1971.

Nixon's orders

The same pair also masterminded the Watergate burglary, which culminated in their arrest the following June. The President immediately instructed aides H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman "to insure" that the Watergate investigation didn't expose "the activities of the White House investigative unit."

The prosecutors believe Nixon's motive was more to hide the undercover activities of the plumbers who had his blessing than to protect the Waterbuggers who did not. But the Watergate investigation threatened to uncover the Liddy-Hunt operation, which would lead straight to the plumbers team.

Democrats want no impeachment

WASHINGTON — One of the fascinating aspects of Watergate is the way the Democratic congressional leaders shudder at the possibility of impeachment.

They don't want to initiate impeachment; they don't want to talk about it, hear about it or see it happen under any circumstances; and they hope the President won't resign.

There are different explanations why the Democrats are almost as reluctant as Republicans to contemplate impeachment.

One explanation comes from Democratic Rep. James G. O'Hara of Michigan who says that if his party starts pushing impeachment proceedings they will be tangled in partisanship and bring adverse public reaction.

Another reason is that impeachment has a sorry and unworthy history. It has been tried only once, against President Andrew Johnson in 1868. So-called "radical Republicans" in Congress sought to drive him from office, not for "high crimes and misdemeanors" as required by the Constitution but because the President was trying to carry forward Lincoln's conciliatory policies toward the South after the Civil War.

"The impeachment was a great act of ill-

Haldeman and Ehrlichman would have had difficulty protecting the plumbers without also covering the Watergate tracks. The available evidence indicates they made little attempt to separate the two Liddy-Hunt projects.

First, the White House pair tried to confine the investigation to the five men who had been arrested inside the Watergate. Haldeman and Ehrlichman, proclaiming it "the President's wish," even tried to get the CIA to intervene with the FBI to limit the investigation.

Hush money

Once Liddy and Hunt were ensnared in the Watergate conspiracy, according to the sworn testimony, Haldeman and Ehrlichman arranged to funnel hush money by a devious route to the defendants to buy their silence.

The President's personal attorney, Herb Kalmbach, was enlisted. He drew a reported $75,000 from chief fund raiser Maurice Stans, another $60,000 from White House counsel John Dean. Kalmbach also raised $75,000 from Northrop Aviation executives.

He was instructed to pay the money to a New York undercoverman, Anthony Ulasewicz, who allegedly distributed it to the defendants. The testimony shows that Kalmbach, troubled over these subterranean arrangements, went to Ehrlichman for reassurance. Ehrlichman solemnly swore to Kalmbach, according to the testimony that he was acting in the national interest.

President Nixon has cited "national security" as his reason for wanting to conceal the activities of the plumbers. Even after he ordered a full Watergate investigation last March, he gave secret orders to Henry Petersen not to expose the plumbers' operation. He loosened up on this order only after both Petersen and then-Attorney General Richard Kleindienst threatened to resign.

Weak claim

The President's claim of "national security," in the prosecutors' opinion, is weak. Little attempt was made, in all the clandestine White House operations, to separate political security from national security.

As far back as 1969, Haldeman ordered Kalmbach to pay Ulasewicz out of political funds. Unknown to Kalmbach, Ulasewicz devoted most of his efforts to digging up dirt on Democrats, including Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman directed not only Ulasewicz's political espionage, according to the testimony, but the plumbers' security, espionage as well. Both Liddy and Hunt, along with the other plumbers, were paid by the taxpayers for their illegal activities.

Later, Liddy and Hunt were assigned to the President's campaign committee. Campaign funds were also used to finance the cover-up of the plumbers' operation, which the President ordered for security reasons.

The President will have trouble, in other words, distinguishing where politics ended and security began.

directed passion and was supported by little else," wrote historian Eric L. McKittrick in 1960. Although it failed by one vote in the Senate, it created bitter divisions in the nation and brought the government to a near standstill.

Third reason

There is a third reason why the Democrats are shunning any plans for impeachment and in doing so can look very virtuous. It's practical politics. And if the tables were reversed and a Democrat were in Nixon's plight in the White House, the Republicans would be pursuing the same tack.

The Democrats don't want Richard Nixon out of office; they want to keep him there. They don't want him to resign; they want him to stay to the end.

For the Democrats Watergate is a much more usable issue in the congressional elections next year and even in 1976 with a defensive President still warding off the blows in the White House. They don't want him to escape into retirement; they want to keep him on the spot, a visible target and a continuing reminder of the Watergate crimes.

The Democrats do not want to see Watergate dissolved into the back of the public mind by a fresh, reformist Agnew Administration vigorously pressing Congress to enact stronger post-Watergate reforms than some Democrats might wish.

This could be the overriding reason why impeachment is the last thing that Democratic leaders desire. This could be the most plausible explanation why Sen. Sam Ervin's committee is turning aside the proposal of one of its own Democratic members that it call the top White House staff witnesses at once to determine as soon as possible whether the President is guilty or innocent of prior knowledge of the break-ins and the coverups.

Samuel Dash, the committee's chief counsel, says this would break the pattern of orderly testimony. It would, but it would also enable the committee to try to get to the largest truth — its conclusion as to whether or how much President Nixon himself was involved — far sooner than would otherwise be the case.

Undoubtedly there will be more disclosures, but I can see one explanation coming more sharply into focus. Even those on the White House staff who should logically have gone to the President had a powerful incentive not to do so: They were covering up for themselves, hoping that neither the President nor the public would learn the truth.

Price of gasoline may soon increase

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Second in a three-part series on the energy crisis.)

By DAVID E. LYNCH
Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — There may be a silver lining in the empty gas tanks predicted for this summer, according to a high government official.

William E. Simon, the Deputy Secretary of the Treasury recently told the Joint Economic Committee that gasoline prices "will probably increase over time. This would provide certain benefits to the nation's refiners and:

— "Help save some independent gasoline dealers and refiners who are otherwise going out of business.

— "Encourage Americans to conserve gasoline.

— "Also help to provide the economic incentives needed to speed up the construction and expansion of badly needed domestic refinery capacity."

Although this may seem highly dubious in light of all the publicity the energy crisis has been receiving, friend and foe alike find themselves agreeing with Simon's predictions, except for the part about the independents.

It is very difficult to find anyone agreeing that the independents have anything to gain. The gasoline shortage has forced them to raise their prices and, in some cases, close their retail stations.

This comes at a most inopportune time, according to Fred C. Allvine, a Georgia Institute of Technology professor who has been studying the gasoline market for several years.

The independents, after many years of disposing of the major oil companies' surplus at a great saving to the consumer, had finally reached the point where they were "forcing the majors to incorporate their efficiency and self service that could have resulted in substantial savings to the public," Allvine said.

These major companies, Martin Lobel, a former energy expert for the Joint Economic Committee says, "Don't want the independents cutting into their market, so they're going to cut off supply."

There are strong indications that Lobel is right. The majors are getting into the discount business at the same time the independents are being forced out.

Exxon, Gulf, Shell and Phillips Petroleum are now marketing discount gas in several sections of the country at the same time that the majors are closing their unprofitable brand name stations all over the country. The majors are closing those stations located more than 300 miles from their pipelines and refineries.

Exxon is in the process of closing 150 of its 400 retail stations in Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana. Gulf has put 3,500 stations in 21 states from Illinois to California up for sale. BP has already pulled out of the Northeast and Sun Oil Co. has withdrawn from Tennessee and most of the upper Midwest. Cities Service, Atlantic Richfield and Phillips Petroleum are also closing stations.

Simon is correct when he says all this will push prices up, encourage conservation and provide economic incentives for refinery construction and expansion.

But how high the prices will go, how this conservation will come about and what kind of incentives will result is difficult to determine.

The Cost of Living Council has already rejected one oil company's request for a retail price increase of more than 1.5 per cent. So this should serve as some indication that the government is prepared to hold the line.

And Simon did assure the joint committee that the predictions of gasoline prices rising anywhere from 60 cents to a dollar a gallon are unfounded.

But the major oil companies may be in a position later this summer when there just isn't any domestic gasoline left to say they cannot import the European stock without a price increase.

The government may have the ammunition needed to deflate this strategy. A Federal Trade Commission official recently testified that the first effect of the fuel shortages on several major oil companies was a "sharp increase in their profits."

EDCNP to cite rail needs

AVOCA — The Transportation Committee of the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania (EDCNP) will appear before a U.S. Senate Transportation Subcommittee to present testimony on the effects of the abandonment of railroad service to the region.

Howard Grossman, EDCNP executive director, said the council's committee and representatives of regional civic, economic, and industrial organizations expect to appear before the Senate Subcommittee on Surface Transportation, chaired by Senator Vance Hartke, in mid-June.

Grossman said the council, in cooperation with regional Chambers of Commerce, has compiled a "rail users' survey" of some 230 companies who would suffer from termination of rail service.

"We plan to present the results of this survey and an overview of Northeastern Pennsylvania's rail service needs to the Subcommittee."

The Lehigh Valley Railroad — the principal rail service to the region — has scheduled to terminate its operations on October 1 pending a June 7 bankruptcy.

In a move to provide time to study and reorganize the region's railroad transportation system, several Northeastern Pennsylvania Chambers of Commerce are expected to petition the court to defer any decision it may make on the case.

Northeastern firemen set two-day training school

DURYEA — The 25th annual Regional Fire School conducted by the Northeastern Pennsylvania Volunteer Firemen's Federation and sponsored by Excelsior Hose Company No. 2 of Duryea will be held Saturday and Sunday, June 2 and 3.

The school will be conducted on the grounds adjacent to the Excelsior Hose Co. Headquarters on Foote Avenue, Duryea.

A house located two blocks from the training grounds will be used for structural fire training and three mobile homes will be used for fire training classes.

One trailer will be used for smoke mask training and the other two will be used for classes in fire fighting and extinguishing mobile home fires.

Howard Grossman, EDCNP executive director, said the council's committee and representatives of regional civic, economic, and industrial organizations expect to appear before the Senate Subcommittee on Surface Transportation, chaired by Senator Vance Hartke, in mid-June.

Grossman said the council, in cooperation with regional Chambers of Commerce, has compiled a "rail users' survey" of some 230 companies who would suffer from termination of rail service.

"We plan to present the results of this survey and an overview of Northeastern Pennsylvania's rail service needs to the Subcommittee."

Graduation service set

BANGOR — The Baccalaureate service for the Class of 1973 of the Bangor Area Senior High School will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

There will be three clergymen participating in the program, each of whom is the parent of a senior graduating this year. The invocation will be given by Rev. Albert Kovacs, St. John's Evangelical and Reformed United Church of Christ. An address will be given by Rev. George deKrafft, First United Methodist Church. Rev. John Miller, Presbyterian Parish, will give the Benediction.

Following the last class on Sunday the home and trailers will be totally burned.

An oil pit 20 by 30 feet, including a large tank of fuel will be used for problem fires and other items of a hazardous nature will be utilized as part of the program.

The school program will not be limited to male personnel. Female participation in the school program has been encouraged since female participation is on the increase and many women are active members of many rural fire rescue and ambulance companies. Women are providing a very effective addition to short handed fire services especially during the hours of the day when the men are at work outside their local community.

Junior Firemen and Junior Firewomen are invited to participate.

Regular course classes at the school will be as follows; rescue and masks; structural fires and mobile trailer homes; problem fires; extinguishers; ladders and hose evolution.

Special two-day classes (Saturday and Sunday) will consist of fire department officers training classes; ambulance, rescue evacuation techniques; and first aid; pumping and hose work.

There will be a one-day ladies class, junior and senior on Sunday. This class will include instructions on fire prevention, use of fire extinguishers, first aid and instructions for baby sitters.

Booths will be set up on the training grounds and demonstrations presented on use of foam, moving of buildings and other demonstrations by manufacturers of fire equipment and associated products.

The fire school is under direction of James Oakey, Federation Fire School director and his staff.

All classes are authorized and conducted by State Fire School instructors.

There will be participation for the second consecutive year by the full complement of the Naval Reserve Group Command from the Naval Reserve Center, Avoca.

Personnel from industry, hospitals and nursing homes will also participate in the training at the fire school.

The Pennsylvania State Police will provide a helicopter and crew for rescue and evacuation work.

1973 JACOBSEN TURBO-VENT ROTARIES are HERE!

What's Turbo-Vent?

Ordinary rotary mowers draw air only from underneath the deck. Jacobsen engineers designed the Jacobsen Turbo-Vent aerodynamic deck with upper vents to draw air in from the top too. The Jacobsen stabilized gull-wing cutter bar, operating within this Turbo-Vent cutting chamber with upper and lower air flow produces a remarkably efficient grass blade agitating action; this results in an improved, smoother-more even cut, highly compact bagging action and an under-deck "air suspension" system to help prevent clogging - particularly in thick, moist grass.

Jacobsen Pace Command variable speed drive enables you to select the best walking speed for your stride, the best blade speed for your grass... Front wheel drive means more mower maneuverability when cutting and trimming.

New 19" and 21" Jacobsen Turbo-Vent Rotaries on Display NOW!

NINE NEW MODELS... All with Turbo-Vent Cutting System. Plus:

- Choice of Jacobsen Heavy Duty or B & S 4-cycle engine
- Adjustable fold-down handle
- Fingertip-cutting height adjustment
- Vented washout port system
- Long-life polyester cable cord grass bag.

Come in and select yours... you'll get full cut for your money!

All Jacobsen mowers bearing this OPEI label meet or exceed the B7.1-1972 safety specifications published by the American National Standards Institute.

Nuc plants target for Nader law suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader and the environmental organization Friends of the Earth, Thursday filed suit to shut down 20 nuclear power plants on safety grounds.

Two of the plants, Nader said, are near President's Nixon's California and Florida homes — the San Onofre No. 1 plant, located "a few hundred yards" from Nixon's San Clemente home and Turkey Point Plants No. 3 and No. 4 at Biscayne Bay, Fla., site of Nixon's Florida home.

The suit also named Surrey Plants No. 1 and No. 2 at Gravel Neck, Va., located an estimated 40 miles from Washington.

The suit asks the Federal District Court to order the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) to revoke the operating licenses of the 20 plants until all safety standards have been met.

The AEC immediately responded by declaring all the plants are safe although it is in the process of evaluating additional features for its backup safety systems.

"The safety record of licensed nuclear power plants is excellent," the AEC said.

It said the statements by Nader and Friends of the Earth "are the same views repeated once again that have been expressed in various other forms by the same individuals."

A spokesman for the industry's Atomic Industrial Forum said that contrary to critics, "widespread adoption of nuclear power will not compromise our concern for the environment or public health and safety. Never has a technology been developed with such caution, conservatism and rigorous federal regulatory procedures. It is, in fact, this very caution and emphasis on safety that has often been misinterpreted as lack of confidence in nuclear power safety."

The AEC said that although it has not yet studied the suit, "we know of no basis for suspending operations of nuclear power plants."

Other plants cited in the suit included: Connecticut Yankee, Haddamneck, Conn.; Oyster Creek No. 1, Toms River, N.J.; Nine Mile Point No. 1, Scriba, N.Y.; Cinna No. 1, Wayne County, N.Y.; Dresden No. 2, and No. 3, Morris, Ill.; R. B. Robinson Plant No. 2, Hartsville, S.C.; Monticello Plant, Monticello, Minn.; Point Beach No. 1, Two Creeks, Wis.; Millstone Point No. 1, Waterford, Conn.; Palisades, South Haven, Mich.; Quad Cities No. 1 and No. 2, Cordova, Ill.; Oconee No. 1, Seneca, S.C., and Maine Yankee, Wiscasset, Maine.

Deputy handcuffed while wife, sons die in blaze

GARDEN, Mich. (UPI) — The wife and two small sons of a sheriff's deputy died in a fire here Thursday. Three blocks away firemen discovered the deputy, Dennis Murphy, handcuffed to a tractor.

In the area where Murphy was found, a message written in red crayon or lipstick on a large board, read "I will kill you Murphy, first your wife and kids."

Authorities in this one-acre town of 380 said they had no motive and no suspects.

Firemen recovered the body of Murphy's wife, Janet, 20, and one of the couple's sons, Randy, 2. They searched the rubble of the home for another son, Robbie, 7 months.

"The entire area has been cordoned off and state police crime lab experts have been flown in to help in the investigation," said a spokesman for the Delta County sheriff's department.

Authorities said Murphy was handcuffed to a tractor behind the garden town hall. The sign was on a large board in back of the hall.

County prosecutor Tony Marcintewicz said Murphy, who was treated for cuts and bruises at a nearby hospital and released, said someone came to his house at 1:30 a.m. Thursday, told his wife there was a bad accident and said Murphy should go to the town hall where "someone would meet him to take him to the scene."

Murphy told authorities someone grabbed him from behind when he got out of his car at the hall. "They grabbed my shirt, threw it over my head and pinned it," he told police.

He said his wife failed to identify the man with whom she talked.

Marcintewicz said all the gas had been drained from the main fire truck parked at the town hall. He said a tanker truck parked next to the tractor to which Murphy was handcuffed was missing three sparks plugs and Murphy's own car, parked in front of his home, "had the ignition wire pulled from it."

Local control urged for mental hospitals

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Patients would be referred to state-supervised mental hospitals only after examination and treatment at local facilities under a series of proposals made Thursday by Pennsylvania Mental Health Inc.

More local control over Pennsylvania's now autonomous state mental hospitals was the major recommendation contained in an 82-page report released by the United Fund-supported, non-profit organization.

"This would allow for effective utilization of and development by institutions of programs, services and facilities geared to the needs of local communities," the report said. "This should encourage more effective planning and permit responsibility and authority for the provision of services . . . to be vested in a single authority."

It said the idea of initial examination and treatment of patients at county-operated mental health facilities before their referral to state hospitals was being considered by the Pennsylvania Welfare Department.

Concluding that Pennsylvania should be "proud of its community programs," the report added that "the roles of state, regional and local system components to be frequently ill-defined and uncoordinated."

It also found "discrepancies . . . in the scope and conduct of programs; data collection and analysis techniques . . . unsystematic; uniform guidelines for planning and operation were lacking; arbitrary boundaries frequently limit service to clients.

"Adult outpatient services were found to exist in most areas of the state, but services for children and adolescents were far less available," it said. "Acute inpatient care, partial hospitalization, after-care for patients leaving institutions and preventive services were found to be sparse."

Nixon confidante charged

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Financier C. Arnholt Smith, longtime confidante of President Nixon, his Westgate-California Corp. and seven other defendants were named Thursday in a securities fraud complaint filed by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The complaint alleged schemes, artifices and misstatements of facts were utilized to "systematically appropriate the assets" of Westgate firms for the benefit of the defendants.

The scheme description read: "Westgate assets were sold to companies owned by the defendants . . . (with) financing . . . arranged through C.A. Smith through borrowing at U.S. National Bank."

Smith recently stepped down as board chairman of the bank and Westgate. Three of the defendants were individuals and six were corporations.

The SEC asked for injunctive relief to prevent continuation of the alleged violations.

The government asked that a receiver be appointed to conduct the affairs of Westgate. It also sought full access to all books and records of the defendants and an order empowering the receiver to conduct a full investigation into Westgate's financial "affairs."

Smith, a San Diego multimillionaire, has been close to the President since Nixon was a congressman and was a major contributor to Nixon's political campaigns over the years.

Westgate embraces numerous enterprises including an airline, taxicab operations in many western cities, financial institutions and tuna fishing and canning operations.

46 persons killed in airplane crash

NEW DELHI (UPI) — An Indian Airlines jetliner carrying 65 persons including a cabinet minister burst into flames and crashed Thursday night minutes before it was to land at Palma airport in the southern section of New Delhi.

Rescuers pulled 19 persons alive from the wreckage of the plane, but the 46 others aboard were killed. Among the victims was an Indian government cabinet minister, S. Kumaramangalam, who headed the ministry of steel and mines.

A spokesman for the airlines said the Boeing 737 crashed just before it was due to land on a flight from Madras in southern India.

The pilot of the plane, Capt. B. Reddy, was among the 19 survivors, the airline said. They were pulled from the smoldering wreckage of the aircraft by firemen and taken to nearby hospitals, where several were reported in critical condition.

The site of the crash was Vasant Vihar, an exclusive residential district in the southern section of New Delhi. The plane plunged into a ravine and no one on the ground was hurt.

Airline officials said the plane was 45 minutes behind schedule and lost contact with the airport control tower about 30 minutes before it crashed. It went down at 10:40 p.m. (1:10 p.m. EDT).

The crash was the second at the airport within the past year. On June 14, 1972, a Japan Airlines DC8 slammed into the ground and burned minutes before it was scheduled to land, killing 86 persons. There were three survivors.

Ann Landers

Needs more love

Dear Ann Landers: Our neighbors have a retarded son. He is about 12 or 13 years old but his behavior level is around five. He is a very sweet child, pleasant and polite, but it is apparent he is mentally defective.

The reason I am writing is that his 15-year-old sister is ashamed of the lad and doesn't want her boy friends to see him. She is afraid it will damage her socially. When she brings boys home from school she insists that her brother stay in his room, out of sight.

The parents insist they don't want their normal children to suffer because of the retarded child, so they have gone along with the girl's request. My husband and I think it is appalling. Please state your views, Ann. We know they read your column every day.

Problem in Iowa

Dear Iowa: The girl's attitude was shaped long before she had boy friends, and it is a sad commentary on the upbringing she received from her parents. That young lady should have been taught many years ago that her brother is a very special child and he needs extra love and understanding. I hope those parents will check their phone book for the address of the local Chapter for Retarded Children and request their literature. They need educating. If there is no local chapter, the National Headquarters is 2709 Avenue E, East, Arlington, Texas 76011.

Dear Ann Landers: That quick-thinking wife from Richmond with the recipe for Hungarian Goulash on the flip side of the newspaper clipping of her good-looking "committee acquaintance" was lucky. It could have been a recipe for Cantonese Bird's Nest Soup. Of course, any dolt-headed husband who ventures into a woman's handbag in search of housekeys, instead of taking the simpler expedient of kicking the door down, would swallow anything.

But I do admire the gal's nimble-footedness. Machiavelli would have wanted her on his team. A recipe for Hungarian Goulash indeed! Paprika for the mind!

Skeptical Paul From Montreal

Dear Paul: Your letter gave me mental indigestion. Where's your faith, man?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are so mad we could chew nails. We bought a new car 17 months ago. It cost us a lot more money than we had a right to pay, but we decided it would be cheaper than a second-hand model in the long run. We've had that new car in the garage three times since January. The last repair bill was $45. Please don't tell us to take it back to the dealer. We tried. He isn't interested in complaints. Just trades or sales. What can we do? Will the customer EVER get a break when it comes to car repairs?

Squeezed by a Lemon

Dear Squeezed: Contact the Better Business Bureau and give them chapter and verse. They do a splendid job of making people straighten up and fly right. Let's hope that one day we Americans will get the same break the consumer gets in Sweden. Garages must guarantee all repair work for 3,125 miles or three months — whichever comes first. Wouldn't that be beautiful?

Confidential to Winds At Northwestern: Never mind about HIM—I'm interested in YOU. Please tell me how a guy who can't spell "grateful" and puts a "d" in "congratulations" and two "e's" in judgment got into Northwestern. As for your "problem," it sounds like that of a Yale guy who moved to Evanston.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

With two of the members of Glen Brook Women's Assn. scoring 91, the complaint of the rest that the course was playing awfully long hardly seemed justified. However, they had to earn every inch since where a ball landed there it sat.

Unless it took to burrowing like a mole. One group, hunt-

Stroud Twp. Fire Co. Aux. seeks members

STROUDSBURG — The Stroud Twp. Fire Co. Ladies Auxiliary has issued an invitation to any girls or women living in the township, 16 years old or older, to join their group which meets the second Tuesday of each month at the firehouse.

At their May meeting, appreciation was expressed for those that supported the successful blanket toss. The auxiliary sale of dish clothes was most successful as was the teaspoon sale. A new supply has been ordered and should be in by the June 13 meeting.

Miss Bonnie Hiestand was welcomed as a new member. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Joan Bentzoni and Mrs. Susan David.

The June meeting will be held at the Poplar Valley Social Hall with women from Southern Stroud serving as hosts.

Plan banquet

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Women's Guild of Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg will hold its annual banquet on Tuesday, June 19, at 6:30 at the Pen-N Sword Restaurant. Reservations should be made before June 9 by calling 421-2380.

For tubby teens

By BARBARA GIBBONS
Tubby teens and other peanut-butter freaks, take note!

If you love the way peanut butter "sticks to the roof of your mouth," just think how it sticks to hips, tummy, waistline and thighs! At 100 calories a tablespoon, peanut butter is one of the most fattening foods there is. (Pure grease, by comparison, is 110 calories!)

Peanut butter is high in vegetable protein, but commercial brands are more than half fat. No wonder peanut butter turns up on every slimmer's no-no list! But you don't have to give up that yummy, mouth-sticky, toasty taste, if you're a Slim Gourmet cook! It's easy to ing for a ball which just vanished in the middle of the fairway, found three which had burrowed in. Just the same everybody was so glad to be able to play at all after Wednesday night's thunder shower.

Now if the ground would dry up as effectively as the calendar of local events, golfers would get some roll, husbands could mow the lawns, and the children wouldn't keep tracking mud in the house.

After all the hectic doings in May, June dawns as placid as a mill pond — except if somebody in your family is graduating — or getting married — in which case it's more like a waterfall.

While many of the major women's organizations have begun their summer recess, church groups and fire company auxiliaries are using the summer to raise funds through strawberry festivals, peach festivals, suppers, and bazaars.

So while everything may seem placid on the surface, there's a lot of teeming activity underneath.

Strawberry festival date

STROUDSBURG — The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Arlington Wesley United Methodist Church will hold a strawberry festival on Saturday, June 9 from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Stroud Twp. Municipal Building, North Fifth St.

Featured will be Strawberry shortcake, barbecue and beverages. They will also have a bake table and a bazaar table.

Super peanut-butter

make your own. You can even enjoy high-protein peanut-butter-and-jelly sandwiches if that's your bag.

Moms, take heart. If your pudgy preschooler disdains everything else, why not make your own peanut butter the low-calorie way?

The trick, of course, is to get the fat out! You can make homemade low-fat peanut butter with the help of that marvelous cocktail crowd-pleaser known as the dry-roasted peanut. (What chic hostess serves any other kind?) Dry-roasted means just that — no fat added.

Low-fat peanut butter is simply a matter of beating dry peanuts in your blender until they are ground to a powder, then adding enough

Linda Scheirer bride in May ceremony

EAST STROUDSBURG — Miss Linda Marie Scheirer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Scheirer of East Stroudsburg, and William H. LaBar Jr. son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. LaBar, also of East Stroudsburg, were married May 19 in Christ Episcopal Church, Stroudsburg.

Rev. Charles Park performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with white daisy pompons. Kevin Scheirer, brother of the bride, was acolyte.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire waisted gown of white sateen with satin inserts edged in Venise lace in panels down the front and around the hem. Venise lace decorated the mandarin collar and fitted cuffs of the full bishop sleeves and there were daisy appliques. She wore a chapel length mantilla edged in lace and carried a colonial bouquet of white sweetheart roses, carnations, daisies and lavender daisy pompons.

Mrs. Diane Miller, sister of the bridegroom was matron of honor. She wore an A-line gown of lavender chiffon with the fitted bodice and mandarin collar trimmed with lace and matching pull-through ribbon. Lace also trimmed the cuffs of the long, full sleeves. She wore a lavender picture hat and carried a nosegay of white daisies.

The bridesmaids wore similar gowns and hats in rainbow colors: Miss Vickie LaBadie in blue; Mrs. Gail Custard in green; Miss Cindy Armitage in apricot; and Miss Gladys LaBar, sister of the bridegroom in yellow. They carried nosegays of yellow daisies.

Ken Miller was best man. Ushers were Alex Kearn, Gene Custard, Ed Possinger and Michael Scheirer, brother of the bride. Another brother, Eric Scheirer handed out rice packets.

The bride's mother wore a long gown of light salmon color with long, sheer sleeves and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a long gown of light aqua with short sleeves and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

The grandmothers, Mrs. Betty Scheirer and Mrs. Hazel Jacobus, wore corsages of French carnations.

A reception for 150 guests was held at Memorial Hall in East Stroudsburg.

After returning from a honeymoon trip to Florida, the couple will reside at 92 Lackawanna Ave., East Stroudsburg.

Miss Ramsey nets diploma

GREENWICH, Conn. — Jeri L. Ramsey of Stroudsburg, has graduated from the Greenwich Hospital School of Nursing. Miss Ramsey and another class member wrote and planned the commencement exercises and chapel services.

The theme was "Retrospect, Present and Prospect." Miss Ramsey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Osmon Ramsey.

Rape discussed by NOW group

STROUDSBURG — The Pocono Chapter of the National Organization of Women (NOW) held a private in-service meeting Wednesday night on the subject of rape, with guest speakers State Troopers Delvin E. Powell and James R. Harris.

The program was designed to enlighten members of NOW in areas concerning the molestation of women.

Day camp director for Poconos

SCRANTON — Mrs. John Sullivan has been named to direct Camp Pocono for the 1973 camp season. Camp Pocono is the day camp operated by the Scranton Pocono Girl Scout Council for Girl Scouts and former Girl Scouts in Monroe County. The camp will run from July 9 to 19 at the camp site near Tannersville. Mrs. George Learn, Jr., Tannersville, will assist Mrs. Sullivan.

Mrs. Sullivan, who is president of the council, has had extensive experience in Girl Scouting. She has been a troop leader, troop cookie chairman, day camp staff member, director of Camp Laurel, director of a Cadette conservation encampment, board member, district chairman, and vice president of the council.

Mrs. Sullivan plans an active day camp program for girls from 7 to 17 at the camp site. Activities will include hikes, cookouts, outdoor badge activities, songs, games, crafts, nature study and conservation activities. The camp will be staffed with adults from this area.

Further information can be obtained by writing or calling Girl Scout House, 333 Madison Avenue, Scranton. Day camp coordinator is Mrs. Evan Klofack of East Stroudsburg.

AT THE POCONO MOUNTAIN HIGH SCHOOL

Illustrating her talk with a series of color slides and voice recording of famous personalities of those years, Miss Sarah Martin, public relations representative of the Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania, spoke on "The Changing Years."

A representative of those changing years was the presence of Mary Frances Melchior Cobb, who is the author of Stroudsburg High School's alma mater, who was the guest of Violet Hallet Price.

Highlights of the program were fashion photos from the various periods, with the beards and mustaches on the men looking familiar but the celluloid collars which could be sponged off different.

In 1900 the longest telephone call, from New York City to Nebraska, cost $8. Caruso made the first phonograph and in 1910 Fannie Brice recorded "My Man". In the 1930's the Dionne Quintuplets were born; in 1948, the transistor was used; in 1962, telestar first in the sky.

Miss Martin predicted picture phones will be in use in the near future.

Miss Elizabeth Noack reminded members to bring rummage to the YMCA on Wednesday, June 6 for the sale to be held June 7 and 8.

Control Center director speaks to WCTU

STROUDSBURG — Dr. Bruce Duval, director of the Drug and Alcohol Control Center for Monroe, Pike and Carbon Counties was the guest speaker at the May meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union held at the Zion United Church of Christ.

He told of the work being done of his office and of plans for increased activity. A discussion followed his talk.

It was announced that the local WCTU furnishes temperance material to the libraries of the six high schools of the county and is now supplying educational material on narcotics and alcohol to teachers and workers with youth.

Music was furnished by Mrs. Lucy Quig who presented Mrs. Alberta Yutz who sang "O Month of May" and "In a Country Garden."

Refreshments, including a 50th wedding anniversary cake in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Learn, were served by Mrs. Lucy Quig, Mrs. Ralph Kirkhuff and Mrs. Ernest Setzer.

Gydosh-Transue rites in Kingdom Hall

HENRYVILLE — Miss Mary Transue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Harlan Transue of Henryville R.D. 1 became the bride of Harry Gydosh son of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Gydosh of R.D. 1, Dallas on May 12 at 4 p.m. in the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah Witnesses, Dallas.

The ceremony was performed by Hayden S. Howell. The bride was attended by her sister, Susan Transue as maid of honor and by Carol Gydosh, sister of the bridegroom, and Sarah Roehrich of Bath.

Jeff Ayers of Towanda was best man. Ushers were Larry Mabus of R.D. 1, Plymouth and Emil Roehrich of Bath.

The bride wore a floor length gown of imported sateen with the skirt banded by handknipped scalloped lace on the dress and long sleeves. She wore a matching mantilla.

The attendants wore gowns with flounced skirts of mediterranean blue and white bodices banded with two tone white and blue Venise lace with pull through ribbons.

A reception for 200 guests was held at Chase Firehall. After a wedding trip to Virginia the couple will live in Dallas. The bride is a graduate of Pocono Mountain High School. Her husband a graduate of West Side Tech, Kingston, is employed by Newberry Estates, Dallas.

Woman's Club delegates back from convention

STROUDSBURG — Three members of the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs were among the 1,178 women attending the 76th annual convention of the Women's Club Federation of Pennsylvania held at the Penn Harris Hotel in Harrisburg, May 23-25.

Rosina Walker and Amanda LaGrone were delegates and Kay Jones was alternate. They heard Sidney J. Harris, columnist and author, give the keynote address on "Communications — Turning On or Turning Off."

The theme of the year "Strengthening the Quality of Life" will be translated in beginning with the child with a candle as its symbols on the federation theme "Light Up Your Life". Workshops were held, and crafts were exhibited.

Speaker at the devotional breakfast was a young rabbi, Dr. Abraham Twerski. They also heard directors of rehabilitation centers on drug abuse. Musical features were the Milton S. Hershey Glee Club and the all-club state chorus.

A report of the conference will be given to members of the executive board at a meeting at the home of Mrs. LaGrone next week.

Higher in protein

This peanut butter tastes exactly like the fattening kind. The big difference is the color — it's lighter than oil-soaked peanut butter. Because our recipe contains more peanut and far less fat, it's extra high in protein. Two tablespoons provide more than eight grams — that's more protein than an egg! How about peanut butter on your breakfast protein toast?

Calorie-wise, here's how it compares:

Peanut Butter Calories

1 tablespoon Calories

Homemade low-calorie 43

Commercial brands 100

Commercial "dietetic" 100

Surprised? "Dietetic" peanut butter is made for those on salt-free diets. It's just as fattening as the other stuff. (How about it, Skippy and Planters? Why not a low-fat peanut butter for all your weight-wary fans?)

Low-Calorie Super Peanut Butter

9oz. dry-roasted peanuts (2 cups)

1 1/4 cups water

2 teaspoons sugar (optional)

Put peanuts in covered blender container and blend on high speed for several minutes until peanuts are powdered. Uncover and add the water, a little at a time. Cover and blend after each addition. Scrape down frequently with a rubber scraper. Makes 2 1/4 cups, 43 calories per tablespoon.

SUGAR FREE — omit sugar or substitute equivalent amount of granulated sugar substitute.

DIETER'S PEANUT-BUTTER-AND-JELLY SANDWICH — spread two slices of diet-thin protein bread with two tablespoons homemade peanut butter and two teaspoons low-sugar jam. That comes to 194 calories.

With a little British help

Repertory group escapes doldrums

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In a year of theatrical doldrums, America's biggest and busiest repertory company managed to stage its most successful season ever—with a little British help.

Things went so well for the American Conservatory Theater (ACT) that it added an extra week to its seven-month season.

The local troupe filled 90 per cent of its seats during the run, selling out half of its performances of such disparate fare as Ibsen's "A Doll's House" and Jason Miller's "That Championship Season."

With the demise of the Lincoln Center Repertory Theater in New York, ACT became the only resident theater presenting a winter season of rotating plays and the only one with a teaching conservatory.

General director William Ball, 43, who came west seven years ago with his theater troupe, credited the past season's box office success to the development of a permanent acting company performing in repertory.

He and executive producer James B. MacKenzie, who termed it an "abnormal season" unlikely to recur, said it came without any effort to select plays for their box office appeal. He cited the surprise popularity of Ibsen's century-old tract on women's lib as proof.

"The audience seems to like anything we do well," said MacKenzie. "We have to have some balance in our selections, but three or four directors usually kick around what they'd like to do without gearing for maximum commercial mileage."

Ball, who prefers to talk about the climate for actors and the training program, said television is an example of what goes wrong when you aim for mass appeal.

"The Nielsen rating is the antithesis of artistic excellence," he said. "There's too much feeling in this country that you have to satisfy everybody with everything. That's a blind alley which produces only a piece of pulp."

But part of the season's success had to be credited to an imported crowd pleaser—the Royal Shakespeare Company's acrobatic version of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The English company played to 33,000 persons, including ACT's 13,100 subscribers, during a three-week run in the middle of the season. ACT used the vacation to stage a week of "A Doll's House" in Hawaii.

It was the first time ACT had inserted an outside play into its season since 1970, when "Hair" salvaged a disastrous year. Since then, Ball has retrenched—reducing the regular season from two theaters to one and slowly rebuilding his subscription list and the overall quality of productions.

"What's beginning to pay off is the idea of a permanent company," said Ball, who founded ACT in Pittsburgh in 1965. "And unless you play in repertory, you can't keep a company."

"You have a large cast for one play and a small cast in the next. If you play straight runs, you have to get rid of the actors you don't need—and that means for each play you gather a group of strangers and it takes at least three weeks for them to know each others' techniques."

Ball admitted repertory is also the most expensive system—and that box office covers only a part of ACT's $2 million annual budget. The rest comes from $450,000 in local donations, $350,000 from the Ford Foundation and $75,000 from the city.

The slim, balding Ball considers the training program—or conservatory—as the key to ACT and its reason for being.

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Convicted rapist Gerry Matthews plans to bank more than $7,000 by selling the paintings he will make in a Vacaville state prison barbershop during the next two years of his "stretch."

Bob Jahemelick, 39, another prison painter, says his impressionistic originals "are where it's at" and that they sell quickly on the "outside." His paintings feature deep blue tones or solid browns and sport titles like "The Disciple." They reflect a life of ramblings through the cities of America, tempered by frequent stops in jails and prisons for crimes ranging from narcotics to second-degree murder.

"I didn't really come from anywhere. Mainly I was frustrated with my society," Jahemelick said.

Mike Adams is a 28-year-old car thief from Reno, Nev. He started painting in the "Old Jont"—the Joliet, Ill., state prison-back in 1968.

"I walked into a guy's stall one day and saw him painting. I offered him $10 to do one for me and he said, 'I'll teach you,'" Adams said.

Four years and one prison term later Adams currently averages $150 a month from the sale of his originals.

All three men are participants in a handicraft program involving some 375 inmates at Vacaville. But the painters have become singularly successful, increasing their earnings far above the pocket money picked up by other convicts through the sale of handmade jewelry, chessboards and ceramics.

"We had one man here—he's gone now—that made so much money from his paintings that he had to pay income taxes," said Vernon Pereira, 48, handicraft manager. "It was the first time in his life he made enough money to have to pay taxes."

The program is on an honor basis and is designed as a type of therapy. Inmates must have six months "clean time," hold down regular prison work details and purchase their own materials such as paints, wood and metal.

Many earn money to get started by donating blood or serving as guinea pigs for pharmaceutical companies. They can earn $7.50 per pint of blood and $15-$25 a month for serving as test subjects for untried drugs.

The artistic temperament must be indulged, even in prison, and cell monitors allow the elitist painter group to work after the lights out order is given.

"I turn out my best stuff at night," Adams said.

Jahemelick works as a prison typist during the day. "I trip a lot at night—not drugs—I mean I think a lot," he said. "Night is when my imagination gets going, but I have to stay away from painting too much of my imagination. It gets me in the mood—I have to be in the mood to paint."

John Calvert, 48, Crescent City, shares the eight-by-eight-foot barbershop-studio with Matthews. He was convicted of strongarm robbery.

"I have a lot of years facing me," he said. "This helps me to beat the time. It's a heck of an escape."

Matthews waved his hand at paintings cluttering the brick walls in their little studio. "It's the first time I've ever become totally involved in anything," he said. "I did this when I was in here in the early '60s. I hope to do it again."

Upon his earlier release Matthews worked as an auto mechanic in Sacramento. He taught art in the evenings and was doing all right, he said, but was returned to the pen for violating his parole. "I was an ex-con in possession of a gun."

Word of the availability of the paintings is spreading among art dealers and private collectors.

"How many places can you buy an original oil painting complete with frame for $35?" Pereira said.

Art dealers from as far away as New York City know this and they send buyers around on a regular basis to purchase the finer works for resale, he said.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)

Your self-confidence and poise should be at a peak now, so take the initiative and go after what you want. Stumbling blocks will fall by the wayside.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)

Personal relationships especially favored; also your hopes and dreams. In fact, some of them are closer to realization than you may think.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)

Consider the possibility of getting better mileage out of your talents. Realize their value: they are your REAL possessions.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)

The spotlight is now on your material interests. Indications are that you will receive something of value — and in an entirely unexpected manner.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)

Emphasis is on ACTION. You can now go ahead with plans conceived earlier in the week, expanding your interests considerably.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)

Not fully realizing your fine capabilities, you are often too modest. But this is no time to hide your light under the proverbial bush. Get going — and in a forthright manner.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)

You may have to accomplish more than anticipated, but do not let anything stymie you or your enthusiasm. Stars are on your side.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)

Do not jeopardize

a fine opportunity to stabilize your REAL interests through indifference and DO by-pass nonessentials. Have a try at an eye-catching new method.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)

Rule out extremes and risky chance-taking. Maintain a steady hand, a watchful eye and a determination not to forsake principles. Some misleading influences prevail.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)

Some past agreements may have to be revised, strengthened. Competition should enliven the day in an interesting and challenging manner. Be responsive to new ideas.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)

Consider all propositions and suggestions offered, but do not be inveigled into anything that's NOT up your alley. Fine influences stimulate your ambition.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)

Excellent opportunities indicated, but they may not all be on the surface. You will have to seek some out for yourself. Control annoyance with "lesser lights."

YOU BORN TODAY are extremely versatile and can build a luminous career in any one of many fields; could even make an avocation highly remunerative. Your individualism is outstanding and you have the ability to attract people to you on sight. You love travel for its own sake; could, therefore, succeed in any line which involves both traveling and dealing with great numbers of people.

Contract Bridge

B. Jay Becker

Test your dummy play

1. This is a double-dummy problem, and a mighty tough one at that. You are declarer at Seven Spades and West leads the king of hearts. Bearing in mind that you see all four hands, how would you make the contract?

NORTH

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the queen of spades on which South plays the king. How would you play the hand?

▲ A 9 3

of trumps. Ruff the six of diamonds and finesse the ten of trumps. Next ruff the queen of diamonds and finesse the queen of trumps. Then, on the ace of trumps and ace of diamonds, discard the A-K of clubs!

2. Obviously you must win the spade, because South might shift to a club and quickly put you out of commission. Then play a low diamond to the ace. This is a safety measure to guard against South's having all four diamonds.

If the diamonds are divided 2-2, or 3-1, you have ten sure tricks, come what may. Only when they are divided 4-0 is the contract in danger. If North has the J-10-8-4, it does not matter whether you first lead the king or the six, for North has the suit stopped either way.

But if South has the J-10-8-4, it is necessary to lead the six rather than the king to allow you to score the four diamond tricks you need for the contract. You K-Q-9 allow you to trap his J-10-8 as you lead the suit twice from dummy. The safety play renders his diamonds impotent.

Princess Anne, Lt. Mark Phillips — unlikely lovers?

By United Press International

As Big Ben struck 5 a.m. on a recent damp, chilly London morning, a racy Scimitar sports car swept up to the gates of Buckingham Palace.

The policeman on duty peered through the murky glow of the palace lamplights at the young woman at the wheel. The woman uttered a few choice words at the hapless constable, who only then recognized Queen Elizabeth's daughter and waved her through.

The incident, related by palace sources, sums up the kind of outspoken, fun-loving life that has made Princess Anne Elizabeth Alice Louise of Edinburgh one of the royal family's most controversial members.

Born on Aug. 15, 1950, during the reign of her grandfather, King George VI, Anne inherited from her parents a love for horses that soon turned into what friends describe as a "positive mania."

Whenever she could escape from her governess, and the palace classroom, the little princess would take to the saddle for a ride with her parents through the private parks surrounding their various royal residences.

At 13 Anne reluctantly enrolled in a private school in Kent, near London, at the Queen's behest. She scraped by on her final exams in history and geography but her grades in these and other subjects were generally low and any idea of sending her to a university was quietly dropped.

Princess Anne and fiance Lt. Mark Phillips stroll on palace grounds.

By age 18, she had grown into a handsome young woman whose golden hair, slender figure and shapely legs offset an over-generous nose and receding chin.

Sporting an assortment of wide-brimmed hats and vividly colored dresses, Anne quickly acquired the reputation of what British television commentators said was a "modern, swinging young princess" who cared little for convention.

After attending a London performance of the rock musical "Hair," she joined other members of the audience in dancing on stage with members of the cast.

She has been stopped by police at least twice for speeding in the expensive Scimitar sports car her parents bought her as a present when she turned 21.

Anne has refused to give up one of her favorite pastimes, riding to hounds, despite outcries from opponents of blood sports.

When she wasn't foxhunting, the Princess was pushing herself and her steeds with grim determination in show-jumping events around the country.

It was on Doublet, her mother's horse, that Anne won the European Individual three-day championship at Burghley, England, in 1971.

For the dwindling band of traditionalists among Buckingham Palace officials, Mark Phillips is an unlikely though not altogether unthinkable suitor for the hand of the Queen Elizabeth's daughter.

Phillips, 24, a modest, easy-going army lieutenant is not of the landed gentry with titles and great estates to offer a royal bride.

In royal circles, Phillips remains a "commoner" whose father, Peter Phillips, is a director of Walls, a pork sausage and ice cream firm.

His parents and younger sister Sarah live in an unpretentious 15th century manor house in the tiny Wiltshire village of Great Somerford.

Phillips went to a private prep-school and then to Sandhurst, Britain's West Point, emerging a ruggedly handsome 6-foot, 2-inch member of the elite Dragon Guards.

At school he liked sports, particularly athletics. But his love of horses and his outstanding ability as a horseman have dominated his life and soon put him among the top contenders for international show-jumping honors.

He became an Olympic gold medalist as a member of the winning British equestrian team at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

Friends say Phillips is even-tempered—even in the face of teasing about his romance from fellow officers. He readily admits he is no intellectual and makes no attempt to hide his preference for hunting, shooting and squash to reading obscure classical books.

Royalists may find some consolation in the fact that Mark's grandfather on his mother's side was aide-de-camp to King George VI, Anne's grandfather.

Phillips' great-grandfather and grandfather were mining engineers in the English Midlands.

But beyond that his ancestry is as obscure as he is little known to his countrymen.

When he returns home on leave his neighbors see little of him. He goes occasionally to the village pub for a drink. But so infrequently that the pub owner's wife said she "wouldn't recognize him if he walked in tomorrow."

It's all up to housewives to cut down meat prices

CHICAGO (UPI) — Agricultural economists tend to doubt that the government can do much to achieve a major drop in meat prices in the near future.

The only one who can do that, they say, is the housewife. Lawrence H. Smierl and J. William Uhrig, professors of agricultural economics at the University of Illinois and Purdue University respectively, toted up some of the odds.

"There will be a million more cattle to be slaughtered this year than last year," Smierl said, "but there's been a 1 per cent increase in population, a 1 1/2 per cent increase in the population of meat-eating age, 4 per cent more people are employed and wage rates are up 7 per cent."

"There are 13 million people getting food stamps, twice what it was two or three years ago. And they don't buy the cheap cuts. They buy pretty good food."

"Prices aren't going to come down quickly unless consumers are willing to cut spending 10 per cent for meat. If they did, prices would have to come down. But off-and-on consumer actions don't get the job done."

Weather betrays plans
Uhrig believed meat prices went on a skyrocket in large part because "people had more money and they were willing to spend it."

Besides putting a supermarket ceiling on prices, the government rejiggered its price supports and farm subsidies and aimed at raising feed grain and soybean acreage by 43 million—the biggest jump in history, Uhrig says.

The idea was that with corn and soybeans flooding the market, feed prices would go down and meat producers would respond by trimming their prices.

The government hopes depended in large part on the weather and the weather betrayed these best-laid plans.

Rains poured down all spring on the corn belt.

Corn piles up

A massive railroad traffic snarl began more than six months ago when shippers put all their efforts into meeting the needs of Russian grain exports. Now, Illinois Agriculture Director Robert Williams estimates, there are still 600 million bushels of 1972 corn piled up in elevators or back on the farm, waiting for freight cars to wheel them out.

In a revised estimate issued in mid-May, the Agriculture Department said there was still time for farmers to realize the government hopes of 74 million acres of corn planted, enough to bring in a record 6 billion bushel crop.

And if it is too late for corn, the spokesmen said, the farmers can still turn to soybeans and come through with a 1.55 billion bushel crop, which would also be a record. One way or another, they insisted, lower food prices this year were still within reach.

Some members of the agricultural establishment are not altogether buying that.

William J. Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said, "It is hazardous and unrealistic to predict a decline of food prices under the weather and flood situations we have experienced."

Housewife speaks out

Allen Johnson, director of marketing of the American Meat Institute, also feared the government seers had overlooked a few things.

One of the most sarcastic voices raised was that of Mrs. Ethel Rosen of Wilmette, Ill. Mrs. Rosen was one of the crop of boiling mad housewives who rose in April to lead a nationwide boycott against meat.

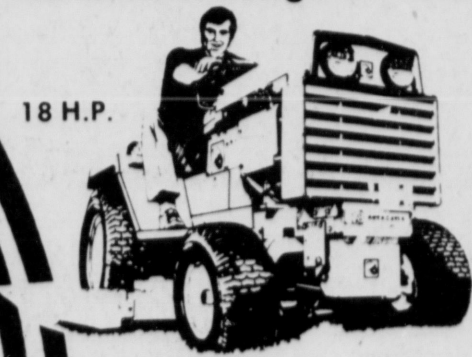

"These economists make me sick with their talk about cycles," she said. "These experts have gotten us into more trouble. They've created a bungled-up mess. We need a new agricultural policy, a new economic policy."

"It shouldn't be that we have to decide whether we can go to the movies or whether we'll have steak. We've always been well fed in this country."

BEFORE YOU TEST DRIVE A VOLVO, WE'D LIKE TO TAKE YOU ON A LONG TRIP

Test drives don't really go far enough.

The fact that a car handles and performs well for 20 minutes doesn't necessarily mean it'll do the same over, say, a nine or ten hour trip with the family.

So before you're impressed by test driving a Volvo, we think it's only fair to prepare you for the long run.

A small trunk can ruin a big trip.

If a meager trunk forces you to leave behind your wife's chaise longue or your daughter's life-size Panda, it may haunt you the rest of your vacation. Which is one of the reasons Volvo has never skimped on trunk space. Its deep, box-like trunk allows luggage to be placed upright instead of being stacked. Giving you the trunk space of big cars.

A long trip can take all kinds of turns.

The longer you're on the road, the more you find out about a car's handling. How well it weaves through city traffic, opens up on the open road and holds the precarious turns of country roads.

Volvo can effortlessly handle all three conditions. For the city, there's its sensible size, turning radius smaller than a VW Beetle and optional automatic transmission with power steering. For the country, there's its firm suspension and radial tires. And for the highways, a fuel-injected engine that lets you move right out in the fast lane.

The further you have to go, the more you have to stop.

Volvo's brakes aren't designed simply to stop you fast. They're designed to stop you fast and over again. Disc brakes resist fading, and Volvo has power-assisted disc brakes on all four wheels.

In addition, Volvo has a dual-circuit braking system with three wheels on each circuit. Which means if one circuit fails, you still have about 80% of your braking power.

The inside of a car shouldn't get on your nerves.

The confined space of small cars may not amount to much during a test drive. But after a family's been cooped-up together for nine or ten hours, it can start to work on their nerves. And before you know it you're not only cramped, you're at each others' throats.

So to keep everyone in an expansive frame of mind, Volvo has designed an expansive interior. Up front, there's as much legroom as a Cadillac DeVille. In back, as much as a Lincoln Continental. And to keep you alert as well as comfortable, Volvo's orthopedically-designed bucket seats adjust to give the small of your back either firmer or softer support.

Be prepared for the worst.

A long trip is liable to take you through foul weather and over even fouler roads. Which suits Volvo just fine.

Before a Volvo is even rust-proofed, primed and painted, body parts particularly vulnerable to rust are first galvanized. And the underside of a Volvo is equally overdone, with two different undercoatings.

Of course, you can't really appreciate all these things when you take a Volvo for a test drive.

But that's all right. You'll have years to appreciate them after you take one home.

Commissioners not ready to assess jail regulations

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Commissioners will have to consult with other local officials before they can estimate the impact of new state standards for county jails.

The county officials said Thursday they have received a copy of the new minimum standards, but will have to talk with the county sheriff and judge about what they will mean.

Commission Chairman Mrs.

Nancy B. Shukaitis said the commissioners should have an assessment of the new regulations by June 5 for a hearing before the Governor's Justice Commission in Scranton.

Mrs. Shukaitis said the new standards show why the county commissioners haven't taken action to improve the local lock-up in the past.

For almost 30 years successive grand juries have reported the jail could stand improvement. The last grand jury recommended the new jail be built.

If a new jail had been built

"four or five" years ago it could prove inoperable in view of the new standards, said Mrs. Shukaitis.

Commissioner William F. Quinn said he thought the new regulations were for larger jails and "different guidelines" should have been designed for smaller facilities such as Monroe's.

Costs of indecision mounting at county home

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

Safety codes required the county to either go through expensive renovations or close the 1924 wing of the county home.

Now the costs of indecision are beginning to mount.

In the nine months they have had a contract with Stroud Manor in East Stroudsburg, the commissioners have paid $115,000 for those 25 beds.

The 1973 county budget projects $212,000 to keep residents in Stroud Manor, doubling the budget for the county home to $470,000.

The contract with Stroud Manor specifies the county will pay $18 a day to keep residents there plus the additional costs of physician's fees and medical treatment.

"Monroe County is going to be dragged — kicking and screaming — into the 20th century whether they like it or not."

Arthur A. Weglein Jr.

Due to increasing costs at Stroud Manor, the commissioners have been notified the price will go up to $19.50 a day in 90 days.

But the real cost of keeping persons in the private facility are much greater when the added costs are figured.

The high mark was reached in January when the county paid $1,441 — or roughly $48 a day — to keep one patient in Stroud Manor.

Arthur A. Weglein, Jr., executive director of Stroud Manor, concedes the extra cost to the county for using his facility.

"We couldn't deliver the level of care required by license if we were to take all medical assistance patients," he said.

Stroud Manor is licensed for skilled nursing care. Called an "extended care facility," Stroud Manor is licensed for 129 beds and provides basically "rehabilitative services."

"We are delivering a higher level of care," Weglein explained. "Our prices are the exact same for various therapies as the General Hospital for similar care.

"We have to go through five more licensing inspections a year than the county home."

As the commissioners tread water on a decision for Pleasant Valley Manor, it is costing more per patient to keep 25 beds in the private facility.

"We told them a year before they got into this trouble they were going to get in it and they ignored us," Weglein said. "Pennsylvania is trying to make up in six months for 10 years of neglect."

And no amount of squirming, stalling, studying or spending is going to make the regulations go away, according to Weglein.

He said Monroe County is in for a boom in needed health care facilities when Rte. 80 is completed.

"By December, that road has to be completed. Monroe County is going to be dragged — kicking and screaming — into the 20th century whether they like it or not," Weglein said.

Predicting the demand for beds is going to increase, Weglein said the county should use the $1.4 million recommended for renovation of Pleasant Valley Manor and build a totally new facility closer to existing health centers in East Stroudsburg.

Calling the consultant's report on Pleasant Valley Manor a "disgrace," Weglein said the county could fund 120 beds for the projected cost of renovating the home.

Police apprehend S-burg murderer

By GARY BARANIK
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A convicted Stroud Township murderer who didn't return to the Dallas Correctional Institution after a weekend furlough was apprehended by Stroudsburg police Thursday morning at a Stroudsburg tavern.

Donald Richard Freeman, 41, formerly of 1989 West Main St., Stroudsburg, was taken by police to the Monroe County Jail. He was later returned by correctional officers to the prison.

Freeman was convicted of second degree murder for the Jan. 19, 1965 death of John Ludwig, 43, Stroudsburg. He was serving a 10 to 20 year term.

Ludwig was killed at Freeman's residence, Brislin's Cabins, with a 30.06 caliber rifle following a quarrel, according to state police reports. The men had reportedly been drinking.

Police said Freeman then ran across the road and told Herb Bush, owner of Bush's Garage about the killing. Bush called state police who arrested Freeman.

Freeman was prosecuted by Judge James R. Marsh, who was then the Monroe County District Attorney. Freeman was sentenced to the Western State Prison in Pittsburgh and later transferred to the Dallas State Correctional Institution.

Major Joseph Ryan of the Dallas facility called Stroudsburg police stating Freeman was reportedly at Teddy's Tavern, 17 N. Second St., Stroudsburg.

Assistant Police Chief Richard Wolbert and Ptl. Elwood Possinger picked up Freeman at the tavern at 9:30 a.m. He reportedly offered no resistance.

A few hours after he was placed in the jail, Ryan and Capt. Richard Kinder, also from Dallas, brought Freeman back to prison.

Ryan said Freeman was on a furlough since last Saturday and was due back Tuesday night. It was the fourth furlough Freeman has received.

The prison usually gives inmates on furlough a day grace period before action is taken. Freeman's counselor called a member of his family and asked of his whereabouts.

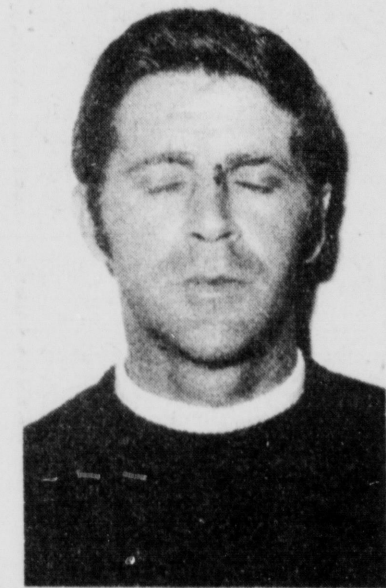

Ryan stated the relative said Freeman was soon returning. Freeman called the prison and said he was returning by noon on Thursday but the prison was not taking any chances.

Freeman was up for parole in about a year-and-a-half, Ryan noted.

He described him as having "an excellent behavior record. To my knowledge, he's been a very good inmate."

Ryan pointed out Freeman was recommended for community relief treatment status — meaning Freeman would live in a halfway house and work in the Dallas area.

Freeman's not returning from his furlough jeopardizes his parole and halfway house status, according to Ryan.

Watch out for the barberry!

STROUDSBURG — A contract is out to eradicate the dreaded wild barberry, proliferator of black stem rust and destroyer of small grain crops.

But before they put any money into the project, the Monroe County Commissioners will find out just how dreaded the barberry is locally.

Topping their agenda Thursday, the commissioners read a letter from the state Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Plant Industry, stating matching funds are on hand to wipe out the barberry.

The commissioners have until June 15 to say how much they will spend to fight the barberry, a thorny slow spreading carrier of the black stem rust.

Appearing slightly baffled, Commission Chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis wondered aloud if the wild barberry and its stem rust was much of a Monroe County problem.

"Never been a problem to my knowledge," offered Commissioner Arlington Martin.

A farm spokesman contacted later said he grew oats, had barberry bushes by his farm, but hadn't noticed any infestation.

Asked if he thought the program was worth looking into, he said: "couldn't hurt."

Two-year-old boy critically injured

ALLENTOWN — A two-year-old Scotrun boy was in critical condition Thursday night at Allentown Hospital with injuries suffered when he was struck by a car.

Gemal I. Kalarev, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ismet Kalarev, Scotrun Avenue, was hit by a car at 6:45 p.m. operated by Frank Turner, Stroudsburg R. D. 1, according to Pocono Township police.

Ptl. Edwin Robacker said Turner was driving north on Scotrun Avenue when the boy apparently darted across the road from a bridge embankment and a group of bushes. Police said Turner slammed on the brakes skidding 42 feet, but couldn't avoid hitting the youth.

The boy was taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County by the Pocono Central Ambulance of Tannersville. He was transferred to Allentown General because of the seriousness of his head and eye injuries.

Police, after a preliminary report, said no charges will be filed against Turner.

Window pain

Vandals broke an estimated 150 windows in two buildings owned by Monroe Silk Mill, South Ninth Street, Stroudsburg, Wednesday night, police revealed Thursday. Manager Kenneth Barthold said rayon being prepared for weaving was damaged. Stroudsburg police are continuing their investigation.

Abandoned building law proposed for Pocono Twp.

TANNERSVILLE — Pocono Township planners will be considering an abandoned building ordinance in the near future.

At their Thursday meeting, Planning Commission Chairman Stuart Pipher reviewed the proposed ordinance and turned it back to township engineers for minor changes.

Suggested changes would cover other nuisances besides the abandoned buildings.

Planner John Wolfe said the ordinance should be changed to include potential hazards like quarries, well holes and cess pools.

The measure will probably be re-introduced at the next planning commission meeting.

After reviewing progress of the nuisance ordinance, planners approved sending a questionnaire to residents concerning a conservation zoned district near Cranberry Bog.

The questionnaire will poll residents and property owners on the feasibility of having their zoning designations changed.

Several landowners have approached the planning commission on this possibility, citing the restrictions of the conservation district toward developing their land.

Planners then heard from a potential campground operator who has a problem regarding sewage disposal.

The Department of Environmental Resources has told the developer he probably could handle his sewage through a septic tank system.

Such a system in that area is contrary to township regulations.

The township's ordinance requires a sewage treatment plant, but the state is not allowing private treatment facilities to be built.

"What the state is trying to do is force Pocono Township into building a municipal sewage plant," Planner Nelson Smith said.

"They have declared only municipal effluent may be emptied into Pocono Creek, because the quality of the water treated is much better than water coming from a private facility," he said.

A meeting will be set up with a DER representative, planners, township supervisors and the developer to seek a solution.

Gas shortage hits area stations hard

By LORA SHARPE
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — The gas shortage has hit the Poconos hard.

Branches of many major oil companies have been placed on quota schedules while some independent dealers have seen price increases in recent weeks.

Quotas for major dealers, based on 1972 sales, will result in shorter hours and more Sunday closings, gas dealers say. Profits, they add, could dovetail considerably.

Beginning today, Shell, ARCO and Mobil dealers will go on quota. Other major oil companies — Sunoco and Texaco are examples — have been allocating gas for some time.

Grand Prix Enterprises on West Main Street in Stroudsburg, an independent dealer, has seen a four-cent hike in prices since last week.

"This puts us in competition with major oil companies," said Mrs. Emery Evans, who operates the station with her husband. "We haven't seen a decrease in business, though."

Independent companies have often had price advantages over major dealers because of cut rates on surplus gas from major oil companies.

Texaco operators are receiving only as many gallons as they pumped in 1972, despite reported rising sales in the first half of 1973.

"We've had to close two hours earlier in the last month and a half," Charles Maier, operator of Maier's Texaco in Delaware Water Gap, reported.

"And if business picks up, we just won't be able to supply customers," Maier warned.

Babe's Service Station in Mount Pocono has already lost business because of gas rationing.

"We had to close Sunday and Monday on Memorial Day weekend because we ran out of gas," said Mrs. Virginia Miller, who runs the station with her husband, Babe.

Babe's will also close about two hours earlier. "And this rationing will cut into profits," Mrs. Miller asserted.

Herb Bush, operator of the ARCO on West Main Street, Stroudsburg, estimates that the quota system will cut 25 per cent from his gas profits in the remainder of 1973.

"We'll have to cut about 15 hours out of our schedule," he said. ARCO dealers will receive 103 per cent of 1972's number of gallons sold.

Although this policy allows for some growth, Bush said it still represents 30 per cent cut in his 1973 gas sales to date.

At Don's Mobil on North Courtland Street in East Stroudsburg, gas rationing will mean closing on Sundays. The station will receive 30,000 gallons a month and no special (low lead) gasoline.

"But we sold 48,000 gallons in April," Mark Hope, attendant and nephew of the station's owner, complained.

Holiday Gulf on Rte. 209 in East Stroudsburg also has received radical cuts in low lead gas.

Earl Halstead, owner of the station, notes the irony of the move saying that "low lead sales are this year double 1972's."

"Most new car owners are advised to use low lead," he said.

Halstead ran out of low lead gas almost two weeks ago and depleted his regular and Good Gulf on Tuesday. "All I've got left 'til the month's quota comes is a little hi-test," he said.

Despite shortages, Halstead won't close early. "Even if you run out of gas, you don't close the doors," he said.

Muldoon's Sunoco in Scotrun will have to cancel its mid-night shift and close Sundays — "the busiest day of all," according to Joseph Muldoon, owner of the station.

"Business is up 30 per cent from last year," Muldoon exclaimed. "And I've been cut back 10 per cent from last year's sales." Muldoon said that the slash in gas receipts could definitely slice his profits.

Shorter hours at Muldoon's have resulted because limiting customer gas consumption to 10 gallons a car "didn't work out."

Flute trio

One of the highlights of this year's concert by the East Stroudsburg Area Elementary School Band will be a flute trio, featuring, from left to right, Beth Leader, Laura Buenzli and Teresa Rice. The school's "pop concert" will begin at 8 p.m. today at the J. M. Hill School auditorium.

COPLAY — For the most part, rundowns and sacrifice bunts are minor aspects in a baseball game. But when the chips are down, even those small plays can hurt.

Trailing 5-2 in the sixth inning, Parkland rallied for six runs Thursday to overcome East Stroudsburg and capture the Lehigh-Northampton League's overall championship and a District 11 playoff berth with an 8-5 victory at Coplay Field.

Two of the Trojans' sixth-inning runs scored on a misplayed sacrifice and the eventual winning run came when the East Stroudsburg first baseman forgot about a baserunner on third base while chasing another runner back to second base.

The Cavaliers, Northern Division champions, scored three runs in the fourth inning to break a 2-2 deadlock and take a 5-2 lead. But then the roof fell in for Danny Whittaker, who had settled down after a shaky start for the Cavaliers.

With both batters hitting first pitches, pinch-hitter Bob Zaborski and Vince Quigg both singled to lead off the visitor's half of the sixth inning.

Steve Tercha then dropped a perfect sacrifice bunt down the third base line, but Whittaker, after first looking toward third base, threw wide of first and the ball rolled into short right field, enabling both Zaborski and Quigg to come around to score.

After Cavaliers' coach Jim Reynolds visited the mound for a conference, LeRoy Moser also sacrificed, this time moving Quigg into scoring position at second base. Winning hurler Jim Knerr then singled to score Quigg and tie the game, at the same time spelling an end to Whittaker's mound stay.

Bob Staples moved in from third to the mound and was touched for a single on the first pitch by Ken Wellington. John Schmoey followed with another single to score pinch runner Rich Neumann and give the Trojans a 6-5 lead.

Wellington also scored when Whittaker, who had moved to first base, attempted to run Schmoey back to second and forgot about the runner at third. A single by Jerry DeGiacomo drove in the final run.

Parkland, Southern champs, will now face Whitehall today at 4 p.m. at Northampton. In another game today, Pius X will face Freedom at 4 p.m. at Coplay in a District 11 clash.

The Cavaliers drew first blood with a pair of runs in the first inning. Staples walked after Rick Myers, who collected four straight hits in the game, doubled to right center and went to third on an infield bouncer.

With a 1-1 count, Staples took off for second and Myers scored on the front end of the double steal when Schmoey, the shortstop, couldn't make the throw home. Whittaker then plated Staples with a booming triple to right center for a 2-0 lead.

Parkland tied the count with two tallies in its half of the third. Moser walked leading off, stole second, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Knerr's double. Schmoey walked after Wellington flied out and Rich Piger singled home Knerr to tie the count before Whittaker fanned DeGiacomo and Bucky Ward.

East Stroudsburg went ahead in the sixth when Whittaker, who singled leading off, scored on a Mike Hunter single. Hunter went out stealing, but Zoltan Szeredi got things going again with a single up the middle.

Chico Carmella singled to short left, Szeredi taking third and Tom Fulton singled "Z" home to make the score 4-2, Carmella moving to third and Fulton to second after an outfield error. Myers beat out a high chop, driving in Carmella, but Fulton overran third and was thrown out to end the inning.

Stargell's 14th home run gives Pirates 3-1 victory

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Willie Stargell's three run homer in the eighth inning, his 14th of the season, gave Pittsburgh a come-from-behind 3-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves, the Pirates' fourth straight win.

The victory went to Nelson Briles, who tossed a three-hitter for his third win in seven decisions while Gary Gentry, 4-5, was tagged with the loss.

The Pirates trailed 1-0 going into the eighth when Manny

Sanguillen lined a one-out single and Rich Hebner walked. Stargell then blasted an 0-1 pitch into the upper deck in rightfield, the fourth time he has done so at Three Rivers Stadium. The only other player to hit a homer into the upper deck is teammate Bob Robertson.

The Braves' lone run came in the fifth inning on a single by Mike Lum, who moved to second when Dusty Baker walked and scored on Marty Perez's single.

Weiskopf Kemper leader after 65

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Red-hot Tom Weiskopf shot a seven-under-par 65 to tie the course record and vault into a one-stroke lead in Thursday's first round of the Kemper Open golf tournament.

Hard on the heels of Weiskopf, 1971 Kemper winner and runnerup last week in the Atlanta Classic, was North Carolinian Lanny Wadkins with a six-under 66.

Five golfers—Ken Still, rookie Patrick Fitzsimons, Mac McLendon, Bert Greene and Leonard Thompson — were grouped at five-under 67 on the 7,219-yard, par 72 Quail Hollow Country Club course.

"I'm playing about as well as I ever have," said Weiskopf, fifth in money winnings for the 1973 tour and winner of the Colonial Invitational earlier this year.

The 6-foot-3 Ohio native had seven birdies, four on the front nine and a string of three straight on 13, 14 and the 599-yard No. 15.

White Sox out Tigers

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dick Allen and Bill Melton drove in seven runs between them Thursday night to make knuckleballer Eddie Fisher's task an easy one as the Chicago White Sox coasted to a 10-2 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

Fisher, who picked up his fifth win against three losses, gave up nine hits, walked two and struck out five.

Tournament class winners included Ann Bedrosian, championship; Mary Jane McClusky, class A; Vi Shafer, class B; Bobby Westbrook, class C and Lucy Viechnicki, class D.

Jane Deihl won the putting tournament and Ann Bedrosian and Kay Tarr both scored chip-in shots.

In the nine-hole tournament, Sally Viechnicki was first and Doris Ferrara runner-up.

A mixed scotch foursome is scheduled for Sunday, June 10 at 3:30 p.m. to be followed by a buffet.

Holtzman earns tenth win as A's blank Yankees, 6-0

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ken Holtzman, Oakland's only starter still pitching like a world champion, allowed only one hit before leaving with an injury in the eighth inning to win his 10th game Wednesday night as the A's ripped the New York Yankees, 6-0.

Holtzman, whose 10-2 record is exceeded only by ironman Wilbur Wood's 13 victories, retired New York's first 20 batters on only 62 pitches before Matty Alou hit a hard grounder through the middle for a single with two out in the seventh.

The lefthander, who pitched two no-hitters in the National League with the Chicago Cubs, then got Bobby Murcer on a fly ball to end the seventh, but he was forced to leave the game when Jim Ray Hart, the first batter in the eighth, smashed a line ball off the rear of his left knee.

NFL player complaints dismissed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) Thursday unanimously threw out unfair labor charges filed against the National Football League by the players' association involving artificial turf and automatic fines for fighting.

The five-member board held that in neither case did commissioner Pete Rozelle or the owners violate good faith bargaining procedures with the National Football League Players Association.

In the case of automatic $200 fines for players leaving the bench to participate in fights on the field, the ruling reversed a finding by administrative law judge Melvin J. Welles, who had ordered Rozelle to rescind $21,200 to 106 players involved in three episodes in 1971 pre-season games.

The NLRB, which heard arguments in the case on March 5, agreed with the players' union that the installation of artificial turf is a mandatory subject for collective bargaining "because it affects the players' working conditions."

But the decision said there was no evidence that the league had refused to bargain on the issue and had indicated a willingness to negotiate about the artificial turf issue.

Of the fines for fighting, the board commented that Rozelle "has always had, and still has, the authority to impose fines for conduct detrimental to professional football with or without the owners' consent."

The players had argued the penalty was approved by the owners in March, 1971, without consulting them.

Artificial turf in league stadiums has been a bone of contention since November, 1971, when the players' association headed by Edward R. Garvey charged the synthetic surface contributed to injuries and demanded a moratorium on further installations.

Seventeen of the league's 27 playing fields now have synthetic turf and the New York Giants and Buffalo Bills are planning to have the artificial surfaces in new stadiums in the future.

The NLRB agreed with Welles' finding on Oct. 27 that the league owners committee headed by Wellington Mara of the Giants had shown willingness to sit down with player representatives to discuss the problem.

The fines for fighting were levied by Rozelle against 34 players after a melee at an exhibition game between Minnesota and San Diego; 58 for a similar outbreak at an Atlanta-San Francisco pre-season contest, and 14 at a Chicago-New Orleans exhibition, all in 1971.

Welles had ordered the fines rescinded to the players along with six per cent interest. The board overruled him, although rejecting the league's request that any action be deferred to allow Rozelle to arbitrate the dispute.

The decision concluded: "... the National Labor Relations Board hereby orders that the complaint herein be, and it hereby is, dismissed in its entirety."

Let's examine race decisions

By JOE MIEGOC
Record Sports Writer

Finally, finally, the Indianapolis 500 got off the ground Wednesday, only to be halted after 133 laps and 332 1/2 miles. But two men were seriously hurt and another died. Was the hurry worth it?

Probably on Monday, the race officials never should have tried to get the race going. The weather was bad and the track wasn't any better. But they were gunning to have the race get going so it started.

Now "Salt" Walther lies in a hospital badly burned. Maybe a little more common sense on the part of the race officials may have seen Walther still able to race Wednesday. What the hurry was to start the race is still a mystery to me.

Then on Wednesday, they again tried to get things rolling. This time, things went off much more smoothly, but on the other hand, the tragic death of a crew member from New Zealand when hit by a fire truck should not have happened, either.

Now Swede Savage lies in a hospital, miraculously alive after a spectacular accident in the 59th lap. Coming off the fourth turn, Savage hit the outer wall and careened directly across the track and struck the inner wall head-on.

The car exploded and broke into pieces, with the fuselage and transmission bouncing crazily along the track, barely missing Bobby Unser. Again, miraculously, Savage still lives.

One hopes that things will get better before they get worse. With the local Schaefer 500 right around the corner, maybe USAC officials should look at each individual day's situation before deciding whether or not to run.

Last summer, the Schaefer was delayed due to the disastrous Wilkes-Barre flooding, which used up a good deal of the local emergency supplies. Maybe the floods, in a twist of fate, saved something here that they took away there.

Maybe the speeds on the cars should be regulated. Maybe the drivers would like to drop the pressure-packed race for the first 200 mile-per-hour qualifying test, which we certainly won't see here.

Some fans may forget to realize that most of the action concerning a race of any magnitude is done on the sidelines. The driver gets out there with the machine, but the guys on the sidelines, the "coaches," are actually the big wheels.

They keep the car in running shape through practices, time trials and the races. They gas them up, change tires, keep functional parts in the cars. And they face danger, too, as Wednesday's events will prove.

But the guys in the cars are out there, running the cars. Maybe a reduction in speeds will help a bit, maybe it won't. Maybe stricter controls on "to race or not race" might help. But as the old saying about chicken soup says, "It couldn't hurt."

Swede Savage remains 'critical'

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Swede Savage, injured critically in a fiery wreck of his racing car during the 500-mile classic at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Wednesday, remained in critical condition in Methodist Hospital today.

Savage's condition, however, was listed as "stable."

Chicago sinks Astros on ten unearned runs

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Cubs, after the first two batters were retired, scored 10 unearned runs in the first inning on six singles, two bases loaded walks, an error, a hit batter and a wild pitch and rolled on to swamp the Houston Astros 16-8.

The Cubs, handing Fergy Jenkins his sixth win of the season, also got bases empty home runs from Randy Hundley in the fourth and Rick Monday in the sixth.

Minnesota sweeps Brewers

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Danny Thompson drove in the winning run with a fifth inning single and Harmon Killebrew homered and drove in two runs as the Minnesota Twins swept their three game series with the Milwaukee Brewers, 4-2, Thursday.

The win was the Twins' fourth straight, equaling their best streak of the season, and the first time the Brewers had lost four in a row this year, but they have lost seven of their last eight.

Dick Woodson, who went the first seven innings and allowed both Brewer runs, took his fourth win against three losses, while former Brewer Ken Sanders worked the final two innings and picked up his eighth save.

Few minor lap changes in official '500' finish

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The United States Auto Club certified today that Gordon Johncock won Wednesday's rain-abbreviated 500-mile Indianapolis auto race.

No changes were listed through the first 15 positions, with Bill Vukovich second and Roger McCluskey third.

New Zealand's Graham McRae was moved up from 18th to 16th, Mike Hiss was changed from 16th to 17th and Joe Leonard from 17th to 18th. Those were the only changes posted at 9 A.M. EDT.

Johncock led final 64 laps

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Indianapolis "500" winner Gordon Johncock led the final 61 laps of Wednesday's rain-abbreviated and twice-postponed Memorial Day auto race.

U.S. Auto Club officials confirmed that the new speedway champion led a total of 64 laps.

Former race winner Bobby Unser led the first 39 laps before yielding the lead to Johncock for three laps.

Jack O'Brian's New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — The Rex Harrison are back in England. The missus jetted there first. In a huff . . . Tennessee Williams is back from his round-the-world escape from the disastrous opening night of his hopeless last play — same day the embarrassing Playboy interview hit the fans. Tenn vows he'll never give another interview — "except after death" . . . Ed McMahon does the Diamond Jim bit nightly at Michael's Pub while he's in Manhattan. Even has his own hotline red phone. Ed's pals can't understand the very rich Ed's battling his estranged wife over the $60,000 annual alimony. Especially since he's a big-to-everybody gifter, al la his idol Sinatra . . . Grid-actor Jim Brown in Mexico is very friendly with Mexican heiress Carlita Munoz . . . The late top gambler (owned the joints, never really gambled) Ben Marden's 20-year common-law wife Alma

Erma Bombeck Trashy lockers

Did you ever wonder where they got the idea for those kitchen trash disposers that condense a week of garbage and cans into a small, neat, brown bag?

The school locker.

In an area five feet by two by eight inches, my son has managed to compress a year of lunches, four jackets (none of them his), a science project that stagnated, gym clothes that have hardened, four boots (all for a left foot), a plastic tablecloth, a Halloween mask of Col. Sanders and the PQ book from our set of encyclopedias.

Also, 35 notes from home requesting an audience with his counselor, a hair dryer, beach towel, record album of the Monkees, basketball, frisbee, three cans of deodorant (all empty), four empty no-deposit bottles of Coke, a sketch tablet with no paper, an unfinished lamp, a pair of gym shoes that had to be fed and watered or they got ugly, and a French horn.

"What are you doing with a French horn?" I asked.

"It's not mine," he explained. "It belongs to Fred, but he didn't have room for it in his locker."

As he dumped another load from his locker to his closet, I observed, "Is it necessary to bring home the petrified lunches? Why don't you leave them on campus so underclassmen can carve their names on them?"

"The school says lockers have to be cleaned out by Friday."

"I know, but you've been transporting this stuff for four days. Aren't you to the bottom yet?"

"Mom, you collect a lot of stuff in a year."

"A year! You've got bulletins in the bottom of that locker announcing an assembly to watch John Glenn go into orbit."

"Man was never meant to live out of a phone booth," he said solemnly.

I watched hypnotized as he transferred the last load of stuff from his locker to his closet . . . a bicycle wheel, my chenille bathrobe, a box of ace bandages, three apple cores, a melted Christmas candle, half-eaten bag of corn chips and a broken thermos.

Suddenly, he jerked upright. "For crying out loud, what's this?"

"It looks like a textbook," I said.

"You can't keep everything," he said throwing it on the trash, "or your room gets junky."

Dupree expects a million from his estate. By Florida law.

Ralph Nader's spread so thin he gets lots of exercise jumping at conclusions: he's down to heading a worldwide International Academy for a New Society with HQ in Amsterdam. A Dutchman gave them a house. Of cards?

Henry Kissinger donated a grove of trees to Israel in memory of boyhood friend Kurt Fleischman. They were schoolmates in Furth, Germany . . . Princess Grace didn't waste a day in N.Y. — had her hair snipped three or four inches . . . Actress Francine York doesn't collect ex-husbands but ex-fiances: former fiancée of actor Jack Kelly, she just unloaded fiancé UCLA track coach Jim Bush.

Country Caruso Eddie Arnold got good news: his car-crash smashed-up son is past the crisis point and recuperating . . . Singer Jack Jones in London is getting mail, reservations, everything except girls mixed up with Jack Jones, leftwing British boss of the Transport & General Workers Union. They're both ready to picket.

The Bob Evans-Ali MacGraw settlement may include the percentage he personally gave her for "Love Story" . . . The Sammy Davis flunking his loyalty test by shifting to Las Vegas Tropicana may be explained by several "points," meaning a percentage of the ownership . . . The Teamsters holds the "paper" (mortgages) on the Lake Tahoe King's Castle. Several gullible entertainers went there with promises of "points" cynical insiders knew they'd never collect . . . Andy Russell at the Chateau Madrid startles his old fans who thought he'd at least age along with them: Andy looks as young as in his 1940s star days; and sings maybe better.

Her ex-manager Marty Goodman's suing Carol Burnett for six-figures . . . The UPI office in Hartford's on Assignment St. . . . Have an hysterical historical inflation note: George Washington's Presidency spent about $583 an hour to run the country; what George spent during his full eight year term wouldn't keep the country running 90 minutes today.

Jean Kerr, witty and deservedly favorite dramatics' wife, even needles her own total disregard for chic; or simple sartorial neatness . . . Her husband Walter once reminded Jean of her consistently descending fashion attention and told her, "Jean, it's becoming pretentious!" . . . Distending Jean's consistently more negative reputation (we saw her once in a new mink coat — gathered at the middle with a safety pin) will be her scheduled appearance June 10 at Act One (lovely spot to lunch and see Times Square from its safest, prettiest point) atop Allied

What is love?

By Jean Adams

LOVE: (Comment) Today a girl asked me if I loved my girl friend Melinda. I told her yes. She then asked how did I know I loved her and just what is love I thought about it for a while and then wrote the following answer.

Love is:

- (1.) That funny feeling you get when she's around.
- (2.) Having tears in your eyes when you have serious thoughts about her.
- (3.) Thinking ahead of what is to come.
- (4.) Feeling a little jealous when someone flirts with her.
- (5.) Saying "I love you" and meaning it with all your heart.
- (6.) Lending a shoulder to cry on when she is hurt.

I could sit down and write hundreds of these feelings.
Melinda's Boy friend
in New Jersey
(A.) Thank you for your beautiful expression of love.
